Astronauts Pass Close To Lunar Landing Site

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 11 astronauts rocketed into orbit of the moon Saturday and soon passed tantalizingly close to the spot where two of them will land Sunday.

Commander Neil A. Armstrong, Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Collins sped into a 195 by 70 mile orbit of the moon at 1:22 p.m. Saturday.

On a televised tour of the barren surface, they called off lunar features with the familiarity of frequent visitors as their spacecraft made its second orbit.

Armstrong and Aldrin reported sighting some mysterious lunar lights in an area where some scientists believe there are volcanoes.

During the 36-minute telecast, the crew pointed the camera at the colorfully named moon features that will serve as check points when Aldrin and Armstrong descend to the surface.

Shortly after Apollo 11 went into lunar orbit mission controllers reported the first difficulties of the flight with the service propulsion rocket engine that must fire them earthward Monday afternoon.

Armstrong and Aldrin found the mysterious bright spots on the inner wall of a crater far to the north of the spacecraft's flight path on its first sweep around the moon.

"It seems to have a slight amount of fluorescence to it," said Armstrong. "The area in the crater is quite bright."

The crater was Aristarchus, in the northeastern part of the moon's face. Some astronomers have claimed observing bright spots in that area which some scientists have said appear to be volcanoes.

"That area is definitely brighter than anything else I can see," said Aldrin. "There doesn't appear to be any color involved in it."

The crewmen, two of whom will be the first men to walk the surface of the moon, were pleased and awed by the day's events.

Of their machine, Armstrong radioed, "It was like perfect. Everything looks okay up here."

And of their closest look at the beckoning moon, Armstrong said, "The view of the moon is really spectacular. It's a view well worth the price." And later he said of the moon's solar corona or ring of light, "It looks like an eerie sight."

Collins reported, "The earth-shine coming through the window is so bright you can read a book by it."

"It looks very much like the pictures," Armstrong said of the lunar surface, "but like the difference between watching a real football game and one on TV, there's no substitute for actually being there."

The commander called off the moon features leading to the landing zone, his calm voice reeling off colorful names like Boot Hill, Sidewinder and Diamond Back.

He reported seeing "good sized blocks" of rock in the bottoms of craters and said the moon's color near the line of light and dark was "an ashen gray."

"As you get away from it you can see several tans and grays," he said.

Then the craft sped over the landing site, which was still in the lunar nighttime.

Nixon to Keep in Touch With Viet Developments

WASHINGTON (AP) — While circling the globe, President Nixon will be in closest touch with military developments in Vietnam, assessing the lull in fighting that could prompt accelerated U.S. troop withdrawals.

An authoritative White House

source, who declined to be quoted by name, says the assessment being made by American officials of Communist intentions would be significantly influenced by the military situation—most particularly if a long-anticipated summer offensive by the enemy fails to materialize.

The same source earlier had predicted such an offensive but now says only that U.S. officials anticipate "high points of offensive activity." He said these could take the form of harassing actions rather than a concerted offensive.

Before leaving Washington Tuesday night on a 13-day, seven-nation tour, Nixon expects to get a personal report from Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who flew to Saigon last week to review the military outlook. Should Wheeler's return be delayed, the informant said, Nixon would get a prompt report via the elaborate communications equipment available on his plane.

When Nixon announced plans on June 8 for an initial pullout of 25,000 U.S. troops from South Vietnam, with further withdrawals indicated, he called for reciprocal action by Hanoi.

The White House source said again that Hanoi need not announce such a reciprocal move but simply convince American authorities that some of its own forces are being pulled out of the South. There has been some evidence of this, although U.S. officials have yet to decide whether it has been a calculated withdrawal or simply a maneuver to give the troops a rest.

Tractor Accident Kills One

Ralph Milburn, 61, 2222 West Second, was fatally injured in a tractor accident Saturday afternoon on the farm of his father, C.W. Milburn, about nine miles south of Sedalia.

According to reports Milburn was pinned beneath a tractor after he attempted to cross a drainage ditch and the tractor reared up, falling back on him.

Larry Arnett, who was riding on a flatbed wagon pulled by the wagon, attempted to rescue Milburn, who was crushed. The steering wheel of the tractor was reported imbedded in Milburn's chest.

Arnett and Milburn, Arnett's uncle, had been cutting brush nearby prior to the accident.

Highway Patrol officer Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax and assistant coroner J.M. Rodeman were called to the scene along with an ambulance two wreckers and three other tractors.

After overturning, the tractor bogged down in mud, and it took more than two hours to extricate Milburn's body.

He was born in Ionia on April 28, 1908, son of Charles W. and Lula Jones Milburn. He was married to Alma Wilken on April 22, 1931.

Mr. Milburn was the first Pettis County fire chief, serving 12 years. He was a carpenter for the Home Builders at the time of his death.

He was past Master of Cole (See TRACTOR, Page 4)

Miss Nina K. Slater

Miss Slater Is Dead At Age 97

Miss Nina Kate Slater, 97, Cedar Springs, Mich., formerly of Sedalia, died shortly after midnight Saturday at the N.J. Clark Memorial Home in Grand Rapids, Mich.

She was born in Lamont, Mich., Dec. 12, 1871, daughter of Dewitt Clinton and Mary Angell Slater.

Miss Slater was connected with the Sedalia schools for 52 years serving many years as principal of Prospect and Mark Twain schools.

She belonged to the Osage chapter of the D.A.R. in Sedalia and was a life-time member of the Missouri Congress of Parents and Teachers. She was also a member of national and state teacher's associations.

She is survived by two nieces, Miss Nina Babcock and Mrs. Ruth Felgate, both of Cedar Springs, Mich.

Funeral services will be Monday at the Bliss Funeral Home in Cedar Springs, Mich. (See MISS SLATER, Page 4)

Surprise Infantry Attack Overwhelms Garrison

SAIGON (AP)—Sweeping down in helicopters behind a rocket and artillery barrage, U.S. 25th Infantry Division soldiers surprised and overwhelmed a garrison at an enemy supply headquarters north of Saigon Saturday.

"This was the most precisely timed and expertly executed raid I've ever seen," said the division commander, Maj. Gen. Ellis W. Williamson, who circled above the battle in his command helicopter.

At the end of the fighting, 47 enemy soldiers had been killed and 25 captured, U.S. spokesmen said. No U.S. casualties were reported. A spokesman said the 25 captives were an unusually large number for any battle in Vietnam and showed the complete surprise achieved.

The enemy camp was located only seven miles north of Cu Chi, the 25th Division's headquarters. Cu Chi itself is 20 miles north of Saigon.

There was a camouflaged main headquarters building, and supply storage buildings.

The attack was staged as dusk, an unusual time for an American attack. First, Cobra gunships flew over firing their rockets. When they left, U.S. artillery opened up on the camp.

As the artillery barrage lifted, the division's 2nd Brigade arrived by helicopter and ground fighting raged for about an hour.

If the Americans hoped to scoop up large supplies they were disappointed. They found only two rocket-propelled grenades, seven AK47s, the standard enemy automatic rifles, and a machine gun. They then were flown out by helicopters.

A military spokesman said the unorthodox tactic of a helicopter assault just before dusk "caught the Viet Cong completely by surprise."

Other troops of the 25th Division fought a four-hour battle Friday with enemy forces near Tay Ninh, 50 miles northwest of Saigon, and reported killing 27 without suffering any casualties.

The fighting broke out six miles northeast of Tay Ninh when the U.S. troops ran into a force of unknown size. They attacked with heavy machine guns mounted on armored personnel carriers and were supported by artillery and helicopter gunships.

Overnight, there was a sharp increase of enemy shellings of towns and bases. The U.S. Command said there were 33 enemy rocket and mortar attacks, 22 of them against U.S. bases. Two Americans were killed and 21 wounded. There had been only 17 enemy shellings in the previous 24 hours.

The rocket and mortar attacks came at a time when military sources were predicting an upsurge in enemy shellings and possibly some ground assaults over the weekend to coincide with the U.S. landing on the moon.

One source said the reason for the stepped up enemy activity, after a battlefield lull of four weeks was unknown, but possibly was an attempt to grab headlines from the historic flight to the moon by Apollo 11.

Purpose of Luna 15 Remains in Doubt

JODRELL BANK, England (AP) — Apollo 11 and Luna 15, American and Soviet ships in space, circled in lunar orbit Saturday as the Americans prepared to put the first man on the moon.

Luna 15, the unmanned probe with a purpose which the Russians have never revealed, was in its third day around the moon, after a slight mid-afternoon course change that lengthened its path just before the three Apollo astronauts went into moon orbit.

Officials at Jodrell Bank, the West's chief listening post on secretive Soviet space shots, and at Houston have scoffed at suggestions Luna 15 might interfere with the Americans.

In addition, American officials have said that there are only remote possibilities that the two vehicles could collide—much less come in sight of each other.

Luna's orbit change came during its 27th trip around the moon and Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Jodrell Bank Observatory, said his 250-foot-wide electronic dish picked up Luna's signal again while it was halfway through its 28th orbit.

He said he could give no reason for the change and refused to speculate on what Luna 15 might do next.

Unofficial sources in Moscow had predicted all or part of Luna 15 would try a remote controlled moon landing to retrieve a soil sample—a task set for the Apollo astronauts during their moon walk.

Another theory was that Luna 15 was the first of a new series of Luna vehicles not meant to land until later and that it would be brought out of moon orbit back to earth—a feat Soviet space scientists have not yet performed.

Achievement Days Competition Caps Year of 4-H Work

By Hazel Lang
The 4-H Achievement Days are always a big event with 4-H club members, for it is competition in which some of the boys and girls will excel and go on to the district contest. This year's District Contest will be held on Aug. 11, in Kansas City on the University of Missouri campus.

The Pettis County contest was held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Smith-Cotton High School with the following winners to go to the district:

In foods judging: Karen Kraft, first; Betty Greer, second; Mary McClure, third; and Cheri Imhauser, alternate.

Clothing judging: Pam Fortune, first; Cheri Imhauser, second; and Mary Agnes Simon, third; with Donna Kraft, alternate.

Home management judging: Mary Agnes Simon.

Home improvement judging: Roberta Knight, first; Betty Greer, second; Beverly Fowler, third; Daryl Fowler, alternate.

Home grounds judging: Kay Rayl, first; Toni Atkinson, second; Mary Bultemeier, third.

Vegetable judging: Pam Fortune, first; David Rages, second; Cheryl Turner, third; Jim Turner, alternate.

In public speaking, one girl, Becky Speaker, and one boy,

Charles Bohon, with Paula Fischer, alternate.

In demonstrations: Kathy Alexander, foods; Becky Speaker, foods; Pam Fortune, clothing; Mary Agnes Simon, clothing; Kay Rayl, home grounds; John Simon, electricity.

In boy's grooming, David Fischer, with David Rages, alternate.

In girl's grooming: Donna Kraft, with Debbie Cook, alternate.

Dress revue, girls 14 and over: Sharon Wissman, with Karen Kraft, alternate.

Girls under 14: Toni Atkinson, with Vickie Gehlken, alternate.

The 4-H Club members are proud of their accomplishments of the past year, and well they should be. The people of Sedalia and Pettis County should be proud of them, too, for these are creative youngsters, builders.

It was Thursday, July 16, that 4-H members held Achievement Day open house for the people to view the things they had made such as beautiful bookcases and tables, lawn chairs, gates, gun racks, dog houses, an inlaid checker board, bench shelves, bench hooks, paddle-wheel boats and other things in woodwork.

In electricity they had

Borgnine Finds Success to His Liking

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The morning after receiving his Oscar for "Marty," Ernest Borgnine felt great.

"I was telling myself, 'Borgnine, you really did it,'" he recalls.

"I was sailing pretty good with my little bubble. Then I got a postcard: 'How could you accept the Oscar when everybody knows it belongs to James Dean?'"

Dean, 24, a teen-age screen idol killed several months earlier in the crash of his sports car, was a posthumous 1956 nominee for "East of Eden."

"I just felt terrible," Borgnine remembers. "I thought perhaps I had stolen it from a great talent."

That's the way life has been for the heavy-set Connecticut-born Borgnine—a roller coaster of highs and lows, triumphs and frustrations, sweet and sour.

The lows have included three divorces, the two latest from actresses Katy Jurado and Ethel Merman. Another low came when he was honeymooning with his present wife: a special-delivery notice that he was overdrawn $432 at the bank.

He blames that on bad business management. "In the year before, I made more than $300,000." But now he's riding the crest again. He showed blueprints of a 52-foot $100,000 motor yacht he's having built at nearby Newport Beach.

"I've a few pennies in the bank," Borgnine beamed. "I have a lovely home, a lovely wife, lovely children and two cars in the garage."

"Everything's coming along great. I couldn't ask more than that the good Lord will let me live long enough to enjoy it even more."

He had just finished "Suppose They Gave a War and Nobody Came" here and would leave in a few days for Italy and "Vengeance Is Yours"—his seventh picture in 23 months and 40th in 16 years.

Borgnine at 52 is a 5-foot-11,

Plainly Successful

Ernest Borgnine is a happy man these days. The actor, who won an Oscar for his portrayal of the unhandsome hero in "Marty" in 1956, is just about to start his seventh movie in 23 months and his 40th in 16 years. But, happiness starts at home, as is shown by the photograph of him with his wife, Donna, and children, Sharon aged 3 1/2 (left) and Cristofor aged 2. (AP)

212-pounder with heavy brows, graying hair thinning at the temples and a grin that shows gaps between his teeth. Hardly a visage you'd pick out from a crowd as a prospect for movie stardom.

He was born in Hamden, Conn., to Italian-born parents—the name originally was Borgnino and his mother was a countess. The family moved to New Haven where, discharged in 1945 after 10 years in the Navy, Borgnine was at another low point.

"I had no idea what I wanted to be," he recalls. "My mother would pack a lunch for me and hope I'd find a job. I had nothing against hard work but couldn't see myself going inside four walls after 10 years in the Navy."

"I'd go into a park and sit. One day I came home and said, 'Mom, I've had it. For two cents I'd put in another 10 years in the Navy and get my pension.'"

"She said, 'Tell me, have you ever thought of becoming an actor? You've always liked to make a darn fool of yourself in front of people. Why don't you give it a try?'"

"It was," says Ernie, "like a door opened."

For four months he attended a Hartford drama school, got a good review from a critic "who in 14 years hadn't given a good review," but quit because the discipline was "almost like being back in the service."

A friend persuaded Borgnine to go to Virginia's Barter Theater, where he spent 5 1/2 years and: "That's where I really learned my profession. By doing, by watching other people."

On road tours through the South, Borgnine drove the costume and scenery truck and played walk-on and sometimes bigger roles. Back at the Barter, in Abingdon, he was spotted by a Broadway producer, who suggested he try New York.

Opening in a play starring Joe E. Brown was a big thrill. Then there were radio and television roles, a cross-country tour in "Harvey," Broadway with Helen Hayes in "Mrs. McThing." Then movies cast him as a heavy. He was Fatso Judson, the stockade guard who beat Frank Sinatra to death in "From Here to Eternity."

From heavies, "Marty" opened the door to nice-guy roles. It was a low-budget, sensational smash because of splendid performances and the fact that Borgnine was a believable, unhandsome hero from next door or the neighborhood meat counter. Beefy, bulldog-faced, inept with girls, he changes suddenly into articulate, unconscious suitor of the wallflower he's left with—Betsy Blair—at the public dance.

Audiences ate it up. It won British, French and other awards. It's run and rerun on TV. Universities use "Marty" in their drama courses. Borgnine says he has been offered "hundreds" of similar roles and $25,000 a week to do "Marty" excerpts in a big Las Vegas night club. He has turned all down. Why?

"I don't want the image. I tell my directors, 'If you ever see any trace of Martyism in what I'm doing, kick me in the slats.'"

Yet in some ways Borgnine is Marty.

—He speaks tenderly, almost reverently, of his mother. "My mother said before she died, 'Stay in the business. Don't forget, no matter how bad or how good things get, try to entertain at least one person every day.'"

—He drives out of his way to patronize the service station of Joe Taormina, a friend for many years. Sometimes he even pumps gas.

Ken Moore Fills Post In Jaycees

Ken Moore

Ken Moore, 25, formerly of Centralia, has been elected executive vice-president of the Missouri Jaycees, whose headquarters are in Sedalia. His duties will consist of directing state office operations, direct sales of sustaining membership, and co-ordination of all state programs and ways and means projects.

He is a past president of the Jefferson City Jaycees, a past region vice-president of the Missouri Jaycees, has twice received recognition as key man for the Jefferson City Jaycees and received the U.S. Jaycee Presidential Award of Leadership.

Before coming to Sedalia, Moore was manager of the Centralia Chamber of Commerce. He is a graduate of Jefferson City High School, attended Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, for two years, and has attended the Institute For Organizational Management at the University of Colorado.

Moore, his wife, Ginger, and their two sons, Ricky and Randy, live at 1625 West Fifth.

Dr. Von Braun Foresees New Awareness of God

NEW YORK (AP) — A key man behind America's moon trip, Dr. Werner von Braun, sees space travel not only as man's new physical frontier, but also as the gateway to keener spiritual awareness of God's sovereignty in the universe.

It signals the start of the "cosmic age," he says, a second phase in mankind's long development, an era in which the earth will be seen in truer perspective as a "planet among planets," and in which the magnificence of divine creation and power will become increasingly evident.

A technical genius and also a philosopher of vision, the German-born Von Braun heads the team that developed the giant Saturn rocket engines which serve the powerful first stage on the Apollo moon flights.

"Through a closer look at creation, we ought to gain a better knowledge of the Creator, and a greater sense of man's responsibility to God will come into focus," he says.

Von Braun, 57, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., discusses his religious views in an interview in Christian Life, a youth monthly published in Wheaton, Ill.

"We must learn to consider God as Creator of the universe and master of everything," he says. "We need a greater Lord than we have had in the past . . . Our religion, our environment and our outlook have been earthbound."

"Astronomy and space explorations are teaching us that the good Lord is a much greater Lord, and master of a greater kingdom."

Von Braun says "the significance of religious thinking dawned on me rather late" in life, although he had been brought up in the German Lutheran Church as a boy, and confirmed when he was about 12.

But he says it was not until the latter stages of the Hitler regime, under which he had developed the V-2 rockets that Germany unleashed on London, that he became convinced of the primacy of "ethical values in the material world."

He and his team of German scientists decided to put themselves and their know-how in American hands. Von Braun since has become an American citizen and has been a major figure in the nation's space advances.

"I started reading religious books, and the truth of Christ's teaching emerged like a revelation," he says in an interview by Adon Taft, religion writer of the Miami Herald.

He says he now finds it as difficult "to understand a scientist who does not acknowledge the presence of a superior rationality behind the existence of the universe as it is to comprehend a theologian who would deny the advances of science."

Now a member, along with his wife and three children, of the Episcopal Church of the Nativity at Huntsville, he says manned space flight has "opened for us thus far only a tiny door for viewing the awesome reaches of space. Our outlook through this peephole at the vast mysteries of the universe only confirms our belief in the certainty of its Creator."

BUSINESS NEWS

KANSAS CITY — Rival Manufacturing Co., reports sales for the six months ended June 30, of $11,476,907, up 7 percent over the $10,680,700 for the comparable period of 1968.

Pre-tax earnings were $1,807,506, compared with $1,471,263 for the prior year period, an increase of 23 percent. Net earnings were $871,615, an increase of 17 percent over the $743,234 earned in the first six months of 1968. Sales and earnings set records for the period.

Mystery Hairnet Frames Husband

Dear Ann Landers: Last Saturday my wife and I went out with two other couples. We made a few music bars after dinner and had some drinks. One of the places served cocktail mixers with little plastic monkeys on top. I put a couple of the mixers in my pocket, which is not stealing since they can be used only once and would have been thrown out.

Later in the evening I pulled a mixer out of my pocket to look at it. To my amazement a woman's hairnet was hooked to the monkey's tail. I had never seen the hairnet before and I don't know how it got there. Everyone laughed. My wife didn't think it was very funny. It's been a week now and the couch is very lumpy. Any suggestions? — Not Guilty

Dear Not: You don't write like a guy who is involved in monkey business. My hunch is that one of your friends framed you. Show this to your wife and tell her I said she's being too hard on you. (P.S. And now, all you guys out there who say I never give the men a break, aren't you ashamed of yourselves?)

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to address my remarks to that lousy crum who wrote: "The women in my office are beginning to look better to me every day."

I'll bet your wife looked better before you married her. She is probably worn out from doing your laundry, cooking, cleaning and raising your children. I'll bet her figure isn't what it used to be either. She no doubt works like a horse and eats like one to keep going.

I speak from experience because this is the way it is with me. Before I got married I had nice clothes. I went to the beauty shop every week and didn't have anything on my mind but myself. Now I have to cater to a lazy husband, do magic tricks with his paycheck and take full responsibility for the kids because he is too busy drinking beer and watching TV.

I'm writing this letter not because I think it will change the big elk who complained, but just to let that man's wife know she is not alone. — An Also Ran

Dear Also: Here's your letter and I'm sure she'll get the message. It came through loud and clear.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband had a heart attack last year. Our old neighborhood was getting noisy so we bought a home which cost more than we had planned to spend. The man who sold us the home didn't tell us that the woman next door runs a boarding house for crazy musicians and a free kennel for friends who take trips.

What with the dogs barking and the clarinets tooting and the drums banging we haven't had a decent night's sleep since we bought this house. My husband's nerves are shot and so are mine. We can't afford to move again. Please suggest something. — Fort Lauderdale Headache

Dear Headache: Is your neighbor disturbing the peace? If so, she is breaking the law and you can do something about it. If this suggestion doesn't produce peace and quiet, sell the house. You say you can't afford to move again. I say you can't afford not to.

Retain Slate Of Officers In Red Cross

The annual board meeting of the Pettis County chapter of the American Red Cross was held recently with the entire slate of officers re-elected for 1969-70. They are:

Chairman, Philip McLaughlin; first vice-chairman, Robert Mason; second vice-chairman, Fred Crnic; secretary, Mrs. John Knaus; treasurer, Abe Rosenthal. New members elected to the board for a three-year term are: Mrs. Carl Raines, Dr. Fred Davis and James T. Denny.

Miss Elizabeth McLaughlin, a Red Cross recreation worker stationed at Minot Air Force Base Hospital, Minot, N.D., and home on leave, gave an interesting account of her recent experiences during the flood at Minot.

Mrs. H. T. Menefee, executive secretary, reported on chapter activities, which included a report on the water program at Liberty Park pool. A total enrollment of 1,073 youths for the water program in June and July was reported. A program will be started at Hubbard pool later in the month, with Allen Browder as instructor.

End a Strike At Hospital In Charleston

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The second of two Charleston hospital strikes, led by an alliance of organized labor and the civil rights movement, has ended after nearly four months of racial tension and economic hardship.

The strike for higher pay and union recognition by nonprofessional Negro workers at Charleston County Hospital was settled Friday, three weeks after an agreement was reached in a similar walkout at the Medical University of South Carolina Hospital.

The settlement at County Hospital stipulates that 42 of the strikers will be rehired immediately, and that "every effort" will be made to provide jobs at the hospital within three months for the remaining 23 strikers.

The June 27 settlement at the Medical University Hospital provided that all of the more than 300 strikers be rehired.

Both settlements provide for a minimum hourly wage of $1.60, an increase of 30 cents.

The strikes were led by Local 1199B of the Hospital and Nursing Home Employees Union, AFL-CIO, and by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

The strikes received attention from national labor leaders. The AFL-CIO, the Teamsters Union and the United Auto Workers all made contributions to the strikers. At one point, the International Longshoremen's Association threatened to close the port of Charleston.

To Fight Fires

"Dump Bucket" is the latest device adopted by the Bureau of Land Management in Oregon to combat disastrous forest fires. Helicopter drops 175-gallon capacity bucket in lake, stream, or ocean to take on water for dumping on fires. Electronic devices control dumping of water in fire areas.

Miss Slater

with burial at Lamont Cemetery, Lamont, Mich.

After considerable education received in her Michigan home Miss Slater at age 15 with the help of her grade school teacher attended the Teacher's Examination given at the county seat in Grand Haven. The legal age for granting a certificate was 17, but the Michigan Legislature of 1887 changed it to 16, so she went again and was rewarded with the necessary teaching certificate. Her application for a small school was granted.

In 1889 members of the family moved to Springfield, Missouri where Miss Slater's school. This led to a teaching aschool. This led to a teaching position in the public schools there. In 1899 she accepted a call to Southeast State Normal in Cape Girardeau.

Miss Slater was elected to the Sedalia school system in the spring of 1902, entering upon the last long stretch of a half-century career. Her first assignment was sixth grade in Prospect school built in 1882. She later became principal and continued in that capacity in the new Mark Twain building erected in 1926-27 until her retirement in 1940.

In 1945, at the age of 74, Miss Slater was selected as Librarian in the Cedar Springs (Mich.) Community Library. She had moved to that community to be with her nieces.

In 1964 on her 93rd birthday Miss Slater was honored at a public meeting in Mark Twain school when tribute was accorded for her many years of teaching service in Sedalia. At the close of the program, a bronze plaque with picture below on the school's vestibule wall was dedicated.

After moving to Cedar Springs, Miss Slater up until a few months of her death continued written contact with her many friends, especially former pupils, in Sedalia. Despite her failing eyesight her penmanship was legible and prolific. During her long life she produced many articles for the publishing industry on history and literature as well as poems.

driven east on Seventh by Fred W. Holze, 61, Eldon, were involved in an accident at 14th and Ohio at 4:35 p.m. Friday.

The left front of the Spears pickup and the right front of the Holze truck were damaged.

A four-car accident occurred at the intersection of Broadway and New York at 3:02 p.m. Friday.

Achievement

unusual table lamps with bases of different kinds including a ceramic duck and a pair of eagles. There were extension cords with lights, extension cord reels, remote control lights and toy motors.

The young gardeners had on exhibit potatoes, onions,

"It has been so dry we don't have many flowers this year," she commented.

"You mean wet," someone told her, and then she knew she had been working too hard. After a season of water, water everywhere, it couldn't have been too dry. But that day was hot and that was probably all she was thinking of.

In the flower division, too, was a corsage. The girl had only enough roses, with not one little rosebud to spare.

"I felt so sorry," said a woman who watched her, "for just as she finished the corsage one of the roses fell to pieces."

A delightful display of ceramics, was on view, one long table with everything from a pair of playful looking white kittens to playing hands.

One of the most fascinating items on exhibit was a very large cookie jar which was the round face of a blond, dimpled pixie with a green, pointed cap for the lid. One ceramic cat looked at passersby with large red eyes like rubies and another had sparkling green eyes like emeralds.

Charlie Brown was there in ceramics, along with his girl friend, his dog and even the dog house. There were all breeds of dogs, owls, with big button eyes, frogs, teddy bears, a fawn, in fact any kind of animal you could think of, including monkeys.

An angel held two candleholders; there were pitchers, an egg dish, canisters shaped like milk cans, trays and many other things.

Displayed were pictures showing the results of photography courses, canning and freezing equipment, and insect collections, each insect named.

The leather work was exceptionally nice with billfolds, moccasins, belts and comb cases. One young cowboy had made a tooled leather holster.

There were framed pictures, one with white daisies on a background of green burlap with "Daisies Won't Tell."

Other things for the home included refinished furniture, framed mirrors, a loom with a woven rug, rag dolls, scrapbooks, pajama bags, and children's toys of all kinds, one a crocheted white rabbit.

Among the new items this year were the swim shift and swim or bath shifts made of large bright bath towels.

The young knitters had been really clicking their knitting needles, for there were caps, bed shoes, mittens and lovely sweaters.

The clothing exhibits were from the younger 4-H members with tote bags, coat hangers, head scarfs, even blouses and skirts, beautifully tailored winter coats by the older girls and a colorful assortment of summer skirts, blouses and dresses, with wool dresses and jackets for winter. Sportswear, dressup dresses, party dresses, and even lovely formals were displayed.

There were many ribbons on everything on display. Blue ribbon winners numbered between 75 and 100.

During the open house members of the 4-H Clubs showed visitors around, telling about the displays, and then served refreshments.

In public speaking, Charles Bohon will go to the district contest. Becky Speaker, who will also go, is not pictured because she left following the contest for a vacation.

tomatoes, beans, carrots and cabbage they had grown.

Most of these things were displays of the boys, but the girls proved that they had had a busy year, too. Here were the things from the vegetable garden that had been canned, along with fruit. Big posters, some with cooking utensils and other necessities for canning attached, were on display. There were jellies and preserves, so good with breakfast toast.

One table had a variety of breads and rolls and delicious-looking cookies and cakes. What nice gifts cookies make at Christmas or any time of year, and these girls gave many ideas of how to attractively package cookies. One clever little gift package was in the form of a circus wagon. Others were in baskets of different kinds, and boxes of many shapes.

There were flower arrangements, too, although not as many as in previous years. One young girl, who had been working so hard on getting the Achievement Day exhibit ready made excuses for the small display.

p.m. Saturday three Negro subjects jumped him behind Main Street Bar, cut him with a knife and took $2.50 from him. White was brought to the police station by another man. White reportedly had a cut on the left side of his nose. Police are investigating.

Question
What are the principal things I should look for when I purchase cemetery property?

Answer

If you are buying grave spaces in a cemetery which is owned or controlled by a religious group or by a city or county agency you are protected by their perpetual existence. If you are acquiring property in any other type of cemetery you should exercise extreme caution. A family cemetery plot is the most enduring purchase you will ever make. You have the right to know:

1. Who owns the cemetery and what provisions have been made for its continuity.
2. How much money is in the endowment fund; where the fund is deposited; who controls it; and what happens to it if the cemetery becomes defunct.
3. What long range provisions exist for the maintenance, future development, and needs of the cemetery.
4. How much money does the cemetery owe; who holds the mortgage; what happens to you if the cemetery defaults.

Regrets Loss of Concerts

BOSTON (AP) — "I'd love to see what's coming. That's why I want to live forever," says Margaret Ruthven Lang, the only person who has been listed in all 35 editions of "Who's Who in America."

The 101-year-old composer lives alone in a second-floor apartment at the Charles River foot of Beacon Hill.

"I'm not doing anything except keep going," she said recently. "I feel well. I'm only perfectly old, that's all. You wouldn't be here if I weren't."

"I don't listen to music anymore. I'd rather read a book. Nothing takes the place of the symphony concert, and that's gone."

Her reference was to the Boston Symphony and in particular to its Friday afternoon concerts which she attended regularly, going by subway, until this year.

Arthritis, several falls and a doctor's ban against her going out alone, ended her attendance at concerts. But she still subscribes to a seat, gives the ticket away and dreads the thought "of not being able to have a seat."

In a way she'll always have one. On Nov. 24, 1967, three days before her 100th birthday, Miss Lang was honored by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at a Friday concert.

Then-director Erich Leinsdorf waved from the stage toward her first balcony seat, and the orchestra stood and applauded her. They played two numbers in her honor—"The Old Hundredth" and Bach's Cantata No. 208.

Henry B. Cabot, then president of the orchestra trustees, donated $2,500 to the symphony in her name. The chair she regularly occupied was dedicated to her, and now has a brass plate attached with her name on it.

Her last musical composition was "The Heavenly Noel," for women's voices, and she said she played it on the piano for a Boston art society, and then, by invitation, in New York.

Asked when this was, Miss Lang replied, "I don't think about my life that way at all. You're talking about facts. I can't tell you in years. Oh, a long, long time ago."

The piece was published in 1916 and carries the opus number of 57. But, asked if she had any idea of the number of pieces she composed, she said, "Oh, my soul, no. Of course not. I can't tell you. It's my whole life's work."

She composed solos, songs, choruses and orchestral works.

Full of Curiosity

"I'd love to see what's coming," says Margaret Ruthven Lang at the age of 101. She is the only person whose name has appeared in every "Who's Who in America" published so far. She became known through her composing, and describes music as her whole life's work. She is seen here with conductor Erich Leinsdorf at her 100th birthday party in Boston last year. (AP)

"Why did I stop? I had nothing to say."

She said she composed her first piece, a quartet, when she was 13 or 14 to play with three friends on violins. "That was just fun in the summer," she says. She took up the violin because her friends were studying it, and learned by watching them play.

Later she studied it in Munich, Germany, but, not seriously, she said, and she gave up the instrument when she left Munich.

She studied piano under her father, and she also studied composition in Munich and orchestration.

Miss Lang's was a musical family. She is one of three children and she said everyone played the piano. Her mother also sang, but not professionally.

Her father, Benjamin J. Lang, played and taught the piano, was conductor of three societies in Boston, and played the organ at historic King's Chapel on Tremont Street.

Miss Lang said she did not think her music is played any longer—"I've outlived everyone."

Since the doctor told her she could not go out alone, she has had a nurse at her apartment seven hours a day. With the nurse and using a cane, she walks every day, she says, and attends services at a nearby church.

"I'd like to go on living forever," she said. "I'm terribly interested in what's going on in literature and art and society. I mean people, human beings." But as for what the future might hold, "I don't think I should like it probably."

"I should like to go out-bang—like a candle... But, I'm full of curiosity about what's coming."

S-C Class of '29 Holds Reunion at Bothwell Hotel

"How come you all look so old when I am still so young?" R. L. "Sonny" Settles, toastmaster, commented to his classmates of 40 years ago at the Smith-Cotton High School class reunion held July 12-13 at Bothwell Hotel.

This, of course, brought laughter, and then while Settles was calling the roll and having everybody stand and tell what they had been doing the past 40 years, somebody handed him a note. He read it just exactly as it was written:

"If you die notify Nola Lee Wright."

And so it went, starting the guessing game for there were those who hadn't seen some of their classmates since they were graduated way back in 1929. Forty years can bring a few changes.

One could particularly was just reverse of when they married. At that time he had carried a little weight and she had to stand twice in one place to make a shadow. Today he is thin and she has gained weight, but everybody knew her, for she had the same little smile.

The activities started Saturday evening in the Ambassador Room at 7 p.m. and on the invitation it said "until 7," and that was how long it lasted. The hour was a real question mark because they had 40 years of catching up in their chatter.

Most of them made it to the dinner but if they couldn't make that they did make the social: Lucille Kueker, now Mrs.

Elmer Gieseke from Latrobe, Pa.; Victor Scott and Clarice Shoemaker, both still in Sedalia.

Prizes were given to those who had traveled the longest distance: Otto Heisterberg, Anaheim, Calif.; Dr. Jerome Needy, Carmichael, Calif.; Doris Danforth, now Mrs. William Davis, Anaheim, Calif.

There were no prizes given for grandchildren, but each stood up and told how many he had. One had 13.

Attending the dinner were: Lewis P. Andrews, Jr., Shawnee Mission, Kan.; Marjorie Beazley, now Mrs. Lloyd Ewing, North Kansas City; Tropha Bockelman, Sedalia; Albert Bond, Kansas City; Georgia Brown, now Mrs. Dale Holloway, Warsaw, Helen Chapel, now Mrs. Richard Gorrell, Overland Park, Kan.; Leonard Corson, Sedalia; Dorris Danforth, now Mrs. William Davis, Anaheim, Calif.; Robert Delph, San Antonio, Texas; Opal Edwards, now Mrs. Mancel Lee, Sedalia; Julia Enderlin, now Mrs. Julia Clark, Memphis, Tenn.; Isabel Finnell, now Mrs. Clark Schneider, Topeka, Kan.; Blanch Fowler, now Mrs. John Corley, Eldon, Mo.; Frank Geminden, Cincinnati, Ohio; Dorothy Gray, now Mrs. Dorothy Reeves, Washington, D.C.; Gladys Griffin, now Mrs. Merle Vaughan, Montgomery City, Mo.; Otto Heisterberg, Anaheim, Calif.; William Heynen, St. Louis; Ralph Hodges, Independence, Mo.

Leonard Howe, Berwyn, Ill.; Mary Maud Hyland, now Mrs. Joe Wells, Glendora, Calif.; Elizabeth James, now Mrs. Kenneth Eason, Kansas City; Estelle Jenkins, now Mrs. Virgil Ellis, Sedalia; Lois Johnson, now Mrs. Glen Rhoads, Sedalia; Harvey Keens, Sedalia; Walter Kraft, Hughesville; Waonita Kueck, now Mrs. James Hays, Chicago, Ill.; Louise Langdon, now Mrs. Louis Momborg, Sedalia; Melvin Lutjen, Kansas City; John McCloskey, Sedalia; Isabella Mitzel, now Mrs. Isabella Schwemly, Kansas City; Theodore Mergen, Sedalia; Leona Meyer, now Mrs. Robert Moore, Jr., Sedalia; Manuel Mosby, Hickman Mills; Inez Mothersbaugh, now Mrs. Woodrow Shepherd, Kansas City; William Mullaley, Muskogee, Okla.; Stanley Meyers, Sedalia; Jerome Needy, Carmichael, Calif.; Beulah Neff, now Mrs. T. J. Porter, Kansas City; Mary Nichols, now Mrs. Charles Smith, Sedalia; Carl Oswald, Sedalia; Ernest Pasley, Sedalia; Rynaldo Potter, Denver, Colo.; Champ Richardson, Sedalia; Eugene Rowland, Kirkwood; Ben Rumsey, Sedalia; Lorine Scott, now Mrs. Gibb Owen, Sedalia; Robert Settles, Sedalia; Raymond Sims, Blue Springs, Mo.; Gladys Smith, now Mrs. Ray Dirck, Sedalia; Mary Frances Staley, now Mrs. Gordon Spears, Sedalia; Violet Turner, now Mrs. Palmer Nichols, Sedalia; Dorothy Voss, Kansas City; Reinhold Wiesner, Chicago, Ill.; Orville Whittle, Raytown; Helen Wilbourn, now Mrs. James McCabe, LaGrange, Ill.; Richard Wilks, Prairie Village, Kan.; Ethel Williams, now Mrs. Albert Anderson, Windsor; Walter Wilson, St. Joseph; James Woods, Sedalia; Nola Lee Wright, now Mrs. Wilbur Enns and Ruth Adele Zander, now Mrs. Forrest S. Mabry, Ellicott City, Md.

Of course there were husbands and wives along to have fun, too, but not quite as much as the classmates themselves.

There were 101 classmates their husbands and wives, at the dinner, and 63 of them were 1929 graduates. Counting the three at the social made 66 which isn't bad out of 162 still living and scattered everywhere.

Members of the faculty with whom the class members had been associated made a good showing, too. Attending were: Dr. and Mrs. Heber Hunt, Paul Grisby, Linney and Mila Swearingen, Maude Sanders, Mrs. Mildred Goddard, Mrs. Eva Graves, Walker Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Pinkney Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Headlee, Mrs. Lois Frick Curtis, Juanita Berry, Edna Snell and Mrs. Marie Waddell Bradley and her husband.

The social evening Saturday had an attendance of 100.

Everybody was right on hand for coffee and registration from 9 to 12 Sunday and then came the dinner, with Settles as toastmaster. Jack Pasley, class president, gave the invocation, and the welcome back home was given by John McCloskey.

A memorial tribute was paid by Paul Grigsby, former principal of Smith-Cotton, and at present at Central Methodist College, Fayette.

Members of the class who have died are: Ruth Ann Archias, who was Mrs. Harvey Keens; Wilbert Borchers, Robert Brown, Orvis Crouch, Dorothy Danforth, Ralph Dow, Emma Grinstead, who was Mrs. Harry Satterwhite; Stewart Holman, Lylian Hurley, who was Mrs. Ralph Dow; Virginia Jones, who was Mrs. William Spays; Virginia McGaw, who was Mrs. Wesley Steele; Paul McMullin, Marlin Miller, Madeline Murray, Mary Chloris Nelson, Mildred Norris, who was Mrs. Ernest Goldsmith; Allen Parks, Ralph Porter, Joseph Reynolds, Jane Rucker who was Mrs. Alben Barkley; Erna Savage, who was Mrs. Ted Dalen; Lucille Shoemaker, who was Mrs. Sam Highleyman; Marguerite Starr, who was Mrs. Charles Cox, Ruth Teter, Ruth Turley, Alexander Wells, Marcella Olmstead who was Mrs. Lawrence Duly; Herschel Rissler and Walter Huffman. Isabel Finnell led the singing of old school songs.

Embargo On Swine Is Lifted

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Swine movement restrictions in Missouri were relaxed starting today.

Commissioner of Agriculture Dexter D. Davis said Friday the incident rate of hog cholera has dropped to a level that will permit near normal movement of swine within the state.

The disease was first spotted early in June when several herds in southeast Missouri became infected.

All movement of swine was then halted, except for hogs sent to market for slaughter.

Davis said Friday that feeder pigs and breeding stock will be allowed to move within the state starting today. Out of state shipments will be restricted until further notice.

Dr. George Stiles, state veterinarian, said five adjacent states have agreed to start accepting swine from Missouri this week if the incident rate continues to drop.

So far over 10,000 pigs have been slaughtered in Missouri to prevent the spread of the disease. Hardest hit was the southern area of the state.

Ownership Figures On Color TV Sets

NEW YORK (AP) — About 20.9 million American households had color television as of July 1, the National Broadcasting Co. said Friday. This was 35.5 per cent of all homes having television, it said.

NBC said its estimate came from quarterly figures released by Advertising Research Foundation—Census Report, based on color set production, sales and inventories.

The latest figure represents an increase of nearly five million color TV sets in the home over the past 12 months.

Chapel Chimes Play Cool Winter Melody

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The chimes in the chapel steeple at the University of Maryland were playing a different tune Friday afternoon as the temperature climbed toward the 100-degree mark.

Instead of the usual hourly rendition of "Maryland, My Maryland," the chapel musician provided a sweating campus with an out-of-season "Jingle Bells."

Crew Leaves Reed Boat

CHRISTIANSTED, V.I. (AP) — Deciding repairs were impos-sible, Thor Heyerdahl and his six-man crew abandoned the battered reed boat Ra Friday night 600 miles from their destina-tion.

The unanimous decision was made after one crewman was chased by sharks when he dived under the ship to try to secure two papyrus ropes that had broken loose.

Heyerdahl and his men boarded the escorting fishing craft Shenandoah and sailed for Bridgetown, Barbados, where they were expected Sunday night or Monday.

Herb Schoenbohm, a ham radio operator in Christiansted, St. Croix, who has been in daily contact with the Ra, quoted Heyerdahl as saying the Ra might drift by itself to Barba-dos.

"I think the main thing is that they were just tired," said Schoenbohm. "They have had a hell of an ordeal the last 70 days or so."

He said the Ra lost its yard-arm in a storm several days ago. As a result, its speed was reduced from 60 miles a day to 25 miles. He estimated that at that rate it would have taken them three weeks to reach Barba-dos.

"The ship had lost its maneu-verability, cargo and rigging were crashing around, water was crashing over the ship... they just had enough," said Schoenbohm. "They weren't out to set an endurance record."

Heyerdahl, the Norwegian anthropologist who sailed the raft Kon Tiki across the Pacific, and his crew left Morocco May 25 trying to prove the Egyptians could have sailed to America in papyrus boats more than 4,000 years ago. Heyerdahl told Schoenbohm he thought he had been successful in this effort.

Inflation Reaches PX

WASHINGTON (AP) — The GI who went to the PX to celebrate his new pay raise has found the inflation wracking the nation's economy has filtered down to the cost of his hamburger and coffee.

A spokesman for the Army and Air Force Exchange Service said the price hikes had been planned for some time and just happened to coincide with the pay raises which went in effect July 1.

"The timing was unfortunate," the spokesman said, while contending the price increases were overdue.

He claimed the exchange system is only now digging out of a $90 million debt caused by the Vietnam buildup.

Servicemen, who received an average 12.5 per cent pay increase, will be charged twice as much for a cup of coffee and up to 40 per cent more for a hamburger.

In cash terms, this means a GI will pay 10 cents for a cup of coffee that used to cost him a nickel, though he now will be able to get a refill free.

Hamburgers that used to be priced at 25 cents overseas and 30 cents at U.S. bases will now cost 35 cents.

Other price hikes have been ordered for such snackbar favorites as milk shakes, hotdogs, cheeseburgers and beer.

Though the increases amount only to a few cents, they impact most heavily on the lower paid enlisted men who like to patronize snack bars to get relief from mess hall food.

The Nixon administration currently is conducting a high level study of ways to make service life more attractive to bring in more volunteers and reduce reliance on the draft.

But officials noted inflation had been exerting increasing pressure on prices.

Also, they said that the Exchange Service had gone into debt because of Vietnam.

The Exchange Service operates like a business, rather than from appropriated funds.

It meets its expenses through sales, and if it nets a profit, that money goes into service welfare and recreation programs.

Leave Vietnam

Sailors watch from the rail as members of the 9th Marine Regiment board the USS Revere at Da Nang, South Vietnam, enroute to Okinawa. The recent visit of Earle Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to Saigon set off intense speculation that President Nixon may soon announce a further withdrawal of American troops, and, perhaps, even a reduction in U.S. activity on the battlefield.

(UPI)

This Week in Business

NEW YORK (AP) — The Nixon administration this past week finally came out with what appears to be the official line on wage and price controls—there won't be any "under conditions that are now foreseeable."

The statement made by President Nixon's press secretary as the "administration's position" was an apparent attempt to clarify confusion resulting from conflicting statements.

In pressing for extension of the 10 per cent income surcharge as the major means of fighting inflation, Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy had said controls would have to be considered if the surtax wasn't extended.

On the other hand, Arthur Burns, presidential council, has steadfastly maintained wage-price controls would not be considered under any circumstances—surtax or not.

Meanwhile, the Senate Finance Committee voted 9 to 8 Thursday to approve the surtax extension bill without change and to send it to the Senate floor for debate.

The House already had passed the measure.

The vote was a victory for President Nixon, but the prospect of immediate debate was uncertain.

Democratic leader Senator Mike Mansfield previously had said the bill must be accompanied by meaningful tax reform and that the bill wouldn't reach the Senate for a vote until a comprehensive tax reform bill could immediately follow it on the Senate floor.

The reform bill has been nearing completion in the House Ways and Means Committee.

The Commerce Department reported gross national product—the total goods and services produced in the nation—rose $16.5 billion during the second quarter to an annual rate of $925.1 billion.

The annual rate for the first three months of the year was $908.7 billion.

The figures accompanied a prediction that the GNP would reach a $933 billion by the end of the year, with sharp growth in the third quarter.

William H. Chartener, the department's chief economist, said over-all GNP figures indicate the government should stick to its plans for reducing inflation.

For the first six months of the year, the economy showed a real growth of 2½ per cent compared with a 5 per cent increase in prices.

Thus, two-thirds of the increase in GNP was caused by higher prices, and only one third was "real growth."

The 2.5 per cent "real" growth rate contrasted sharply with the 6.5 per cent rate for the first half of 1968 and the 4.5 per cent for the second half.

This year's second quarter growth rate was at its lowest level since the near recession of early 1967.

The expected third-quarter gains will be due largely to increased personal income and will not reflect faster real growth in the economy, Chartener said.

The board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange in a landmark decision voted to support the concept of member firms selling their own stock to the public.

The decision came after 10 years of controversy over the issue of public ownership.

The exchange committee on permissive public ownership will work out the detailed solutions to the problems of guaranteeing adequate control of the firms that decide to sell stock to the public, the exchange said.

Before the firms can sell their own stock they'll have to vote favorably on the matter, following board action on detailed proposals and approval by the Securities Exchange Commission. The board is to consider proposals on Sept. 18.

The Federal Reserve Board reported industrial production in June rose seven-tenths of 1 per cent, hiking the index to a seasonally adjusted figure of 173.9 per cent of the 1957-59 average, an increase of 5 per cent over last year's figure.

The unemployment rate declined in June to 3.4 per cent from April and May's 3.5 per cent rate, the FRB said.

Employment in nonfarm industries increased during the month by 190,000. The boost was due largely to increases in state and local government and construction payrolls.

Once again, the government turned its guns on the drug industry. The Justice Department sued for at least $25 million in damages allegedly resulting from overcharges on its purchases of Tetracycline and related "wonder drugs."

Named in the suit were American Cyanamid Co. and Charles Pfizer & Co. along with five other companies licensed by Pfizer to make or sell the antibiotic.

The government claimed in a three-count civil suit that Pfizer, with the help of Cyanamid, obtained the patent for the drug by fraud.

Pfizer called the suit "outrageous."

If You're Neil Armstrong, You're in For a Big Moment

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — It is one more Sunday afternoon. You are one human being. Your name: Neil Armstrong.

Then at this one moment in all of man's existence, one number—99—flashes on the instrument panel of one spacecraft. It is a code, asking you a question.

Now, you must make one decision. Push one button, marked "PRO", meaning "proceed," and you commit yourself, your nation's flag to the audacious attempt to land upon and walk the face of the moon.

You have five seconds to decide. Don't push the button, and you remain safe, relatively safe anyhow in lunar orbit, fairly well assured of making a safe return home.

The day is July 20, 1969. You are standing in the cramped cockpit of a moon ferry, the LM, which from the outside looks ridiculous, silly, even ugly.

Inside, standing on your right is Edwin Aldrin, occupation astronaut, age 39. Like you, he concentrates on the instrument panel which reflects the wizardry of a computer, radar and other fantastic mechanism brought together over a decade to function at this point in time.

For the next 12 minutes—if you decided to push the "PRO" button—Aldrin will be reading numbers and information from the instrument panel, while you, the pilot, making ever more critical decisions.

99...99...99...the panel light insists.

Surface of the moon not quite 10 miles high. You are really flying face down, pointed feet first in space, travelling at 3,500 miles an hour. You are 245 miles from the pre-selected spot for a moon landing.

99...99...99...the light insists.

If you don't push "PRO" you will hurtle past the moon, curve around it, and be able after two such orbits to rejoin the command ship piloted by Michael Collins.

You know that your fragile moon ferry can't take you home. You know that if you do land, it must later rocket you up to rejoin the waiting Collins.

All instruments say everything looks okay. You hit the "prok" button.

The computer, still working, Five seconds now to make up your mind.

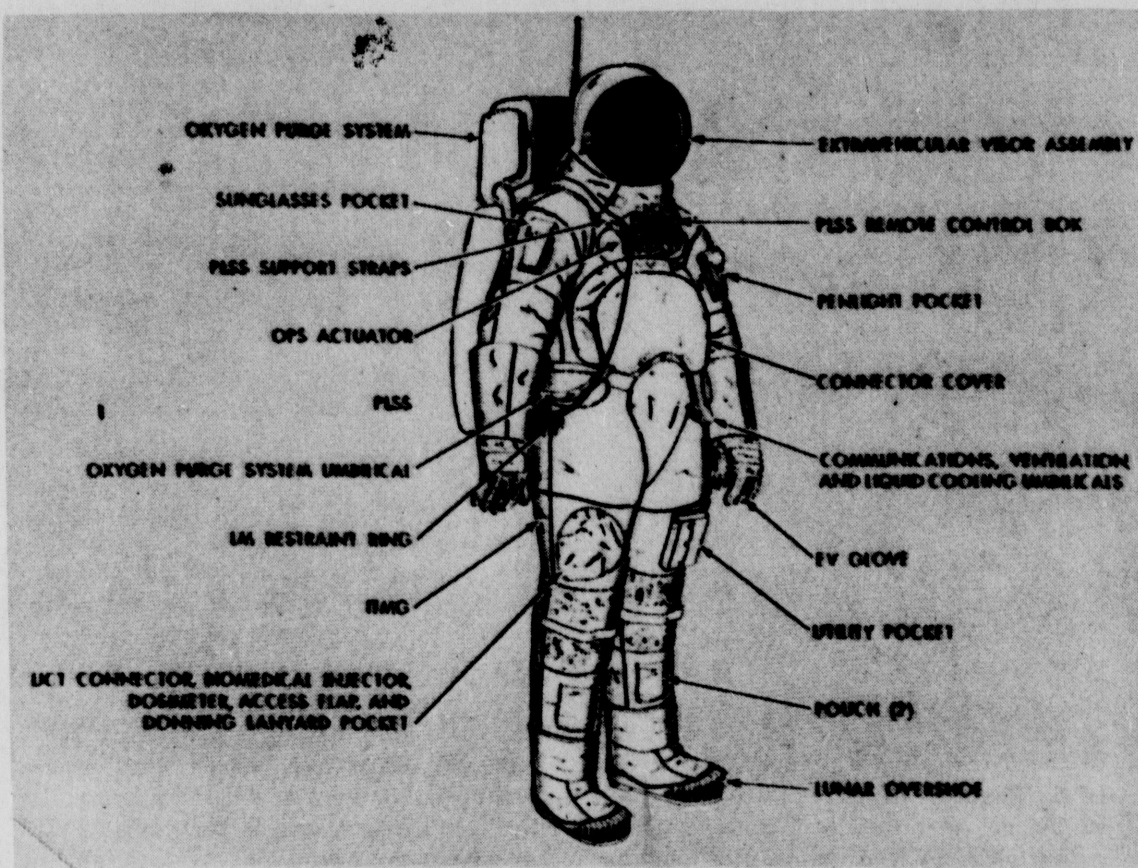

All instruments say everything looks okay. You hit the "PRO" button.

The computer, still working in p-63, program 63, begins putting on the brakes when the five seconds are up. The brakes are the descent rocket at the bottom of your spacecraft. Firing, it acts as a retro-rocket, to start taking you down.

A couple of seconds before "99" posed its question, you had felt a very slight slowdown of your vehicle. This—as you as a well-trained astronaut well know—was the ullage burn of the engine, to make sure that the floating, weightless fuel settles around the engine's nozzle, so it can be used.

For 26 seconds, the engine fires at only 10 per cent of its full power. The computer is figuring out exactly where your center of gravity is, and the precise position for your destination.

Satisfied about that, the computer turns the engine on to full power for seven minutes.

Space Suit Design

The space suits worn by Apollo 11 astronauts are composed of 16 layers of material. The thickness of the suits greatly reduces mobility, but is necessary to protect the spacemen against the minus 250-degree temperatures and against bombarding meteoroids. (UPI)

You begin losing speed, losing altitude, and losing fuel. Aldrin reads out the numbers clicking on the instrument panel.

Speed drops from 5,500 feet per second, to 4,588, to 3,048 and on down.

Aldrin reading the figures tells you—Armstrong, how rapidly you are dropping down in altitude over the moon, how fast fuel is being consumed. Five minutes after you push "PRO," half of your fuel will be gone.

When you are 40,000 feet above the moon, the LM turns, revolves, in an almost complete half circle, so now you are riding belly-button up, still feet first. At 30,000 feet, the computer will make a check, and turn the last few degrees to complete the half circle.

Seven minutes after burn began, you can see the horizon, you are 19,000 feet above the moon, about 15 miles from landing. The engine cuts back to 57 per cent of its total thrust.

At 8½ minutes—meaning 3½ minutes before landing, your craft pitches up. It has started tilting in a downward arc. This means that now, through the window for the first time you can begin to see ahead of you the area where you're aimed to land. It is four nautical miles ahead. You're travelling 500 feet per second, 7,000 feet above the moon.

Frantic Activity Marks Man's Time on the Moon

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — With its big descent engine sending shudders through its fragile frame, the Apollo 11 moon lander lightly drops toward the moon's surface, its commander delicately controlling the flaming descent.

Probes on the moon lander's legs contact the surface and two lights in the cabin announce in white letters "Lunar Contact."

Neil A. Armstrong cuts the engine and he and Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. become the first men on the moon.

That's the scenario. There's no time to look at the scenery. No time to cheer. No time for memorable speeches.

Man's first visit to another planet will begin with two hours of frantic preparations to leave.

Like tourists unsure of their welcome, Armstrong and Aldrin will start a countdown for take off even before the engine that put them on the moon has cooled.

"For the first two hours after touchdown, we have a very busy time verifying the integrity of the lunar module," said Armstrong. "Without that, we cannot safely continue with the lunar surface work and we cannot safely return to lunar orbit."

This results, he said, in "a great deal of technical discussions about systems during a time when most people will be wondering, 'Well, what does it look like out there?'"

They carry the countdown almost to the point of ignition. If all still looks good, mission control will give them the "go" to stay. If there are problems, the crew will fire the ascent rocket and leave the moon with hardly a look at it.

If they get the clearance to stay, the pair will stop working for the first time since their landing. They'll doff their space helmets and gloves and take a lunch break.

They have 40 minutes to prepare their food, which will be either breakfast—bacon squares—or dinner—beef stew. Presumably, the freeze-dried food is being reconstituted in its plastic bags, the astronauts will get their first chance for a long look at the strange new world beyond their cabin windows.

Then, while a view never before seen by man beckons just outside, the flight plan tears them away from the windows and tells them to go to sleep.

"I'm going to be surprised if I'm able to sleep the first night on the moon," said Armstrong.

The module wasn't designed for comfort. There are no bunks or beds or even cots.

One of the astronauts will spend the four-hour sleep period sitting on an engine housing, leaning against a bulkhead with his feet suspended by a cord, Aldrin said. The other will sleep on the floor, leaning against the bulkhead.

"One-sixth G (the reduced gravity of the moon) and the padding of the suit, I think, should make it fairly bearable," Aldrin said.

Two hours after Armstrong and Aldrin begin their rest, Michael Collins, orbiting the moon alone in the Apollo 11 command module 69 miles above his colleagues, also goes to sleep.

At 11 p.m. EDT Sunday, Aldrin and Armstrong end their rest period. They'll report to earth and then eat breakfast for an hour.

Then the high point of the adventure of the century and maybe of all time.

Working with difficulty in the very cramped lunar module cabin, Armstrong and Aldrin help each other put on almost 200 pounds of equipment. This includes helmets, gloves and the portable life support backpack that will feed them oxygen during their moon walk.

Putting on this equipment in the small cabin, says the Apollo 11 commander, is "certainly the most difficult, possibly the most tiring and certainly the most potentially hazardous...We view (it) with a great deal of caution."

For two hours, the astronauts struggle to don the equipment. They load and prepare three cameras. They stow unneeded equipment.

At 1:55 a.m. EDT they turn on their back-pack oxygen system. At 2:05 a.m. they open the forward hatch. The moon waits beneath them.

At 2:12 a.m., while his fellow Americans 250,000 miles away wait in darkness, Armstrong emerges from the moon lander into the blinding, undiluted light of the sun.

Armstrong will begin man's first visit to the moon by ingloriously backing out of the moon lander on his hands and knees.

With Aldrin taking pictures with a sequence camera from the window, Armstrong starts down a ladder to the surface. He moves slowly, hampered by the bulk of the moon suit and its equipment.

At the second ladder rung from the surface, he pulls a cord that opens a work bench out from the side of the spacecraft. A television camera attached to the bench automatically focuses on Armstrong and the ladder.

Aldrin turns on the television transmission system. People the world over watch history happen.

At about 2:20 a.m. EDT, Armstrong steps from the last rung to a foot pad on the lunar module. He stands in the dish-like pad momentarily and then, like a swimmer testing the water, he carefully places his left foot on the moon.

The time is expected to be 2:21 a.m. EDT, July 21.

Still gripping the ladder, Armstrong then carefully brings his other foot to the surface and puts his whole weight down.

Armstrong checks his balance. He takes a few steps to see if he can walk. He attaches a conveyor belt and the ladder. The other end is in the LM.

The astronaut then takes a long-handled scoop from a loop at his waist. Leaning over slightly, he picks up a scoop of lunar dust, puts it in a plastic bag and stows it in a pocket on the left leg of his suit.

Armstrong then looks at the moon lander and reports on its condition.

Aldrin connects a camera to the conveyor belt and Armstrong pulls it down to himself and mounts it on a bracket on his chest.

Like a tourist with unlimited film, Armstrong starts taking pictures, focusing on the surface, the spacecraft and the terrain.

Then he rests while Aldrin begins his tedious exit. Armstrong takes his picture.

While Aldrin rests at the foot of the ladder, Armstrong walks to the work bench, removes the television camera and moves it 30 feet away. He places the camera on a tripod and then points it around the lunar surface, giving home viewers a look at the terrain.

The camera is then pointed at Aldrin who goes through a series of arm, body and foot movements, checking his ability to work on the surface.

There's no mention of it in the official flight plan, but at some point during this time Armstrong will plant an American flag on the moon and leave a plaque and recording disc as reminders of the landing.

Working in view of the television camera, he'll unstow the nylon flag from a leg of the lander, attach it to a jointed eight-foot staff and jab the staff into the ground.

Aldrin then moves to the work bench and erects a sample collection table. He also removes a solar wind experiment—a sheet of aluminum on a stick—and jabs its staff into the ground.

Armstrong opens a rock box, or sample return container, and, using long-handled tools, starts picking up rocks and dirt. He places moon material in plastic bags, closes the bags and places them in a rock box. After picking up 60 to 120 pounds of material, he seals the box.

Aldrin removes a camera from the work bench and takes pictures.

The two astronauts then walk part way around the lunar module, taking pictures of it.

On the side of the moon lander away from the television camera, Aldrin removes two experiments from a storage area.

He carries them away from the spacecraft about 70 feet. They are a laser beam reflector and a seismic device. They are set on the surface.

They move back to the moon machine, taking more pictures of it and the terrain.

Aldrin and Armstrong then begin a documented gathering of moon rock. They take pictures of rocks before they touch them, describe the material, then scoop it up and place it in a bag. The bag is labeled and placed in a rock box. They also take core sample and place it in a rock box.

Their two hours and 40 minutes on the moon's surface is drawing to a close. They collect as many samples as they can and then return to the moon lander. Aldrin collects the solar wind experiment and puts it in a rock box.

Aldrin then moves to the ladder, wipes his boots against the footpad and starts up the ladder. Armstrong takes his picture.

Aldrin then pulls cameras and rock boxes into the space cabin

Now you have a couple of minutes to decide whether you really want to come down at the preselected site. If it looks too dangerous as you come nearer, you can pilot the craft to another spot within a distance of a few miles.

The computer has moved along into other programs, now to p-65, giving automatic control of your descent toward the moon. It is three feet per second, a safe landing speed, you must hope.

Now you are hovering only 100 to 150 feet over the moon. You can control lateral movements, just as in a helicopter. Tilt a helicopter forward a bit in its angle, and it moves in the direction of the tilt. Just so, your moon craft can use tilt and its engine to let you move sideways, left or right, or any direction, as your search for the best landing spot. If you have moved forward, then you tip the craft back to make it stop where you want it to.

You look down, piloting the ship if need be to avoid a boulder here, a crater there. By going on into programs 66, or 67, you can control the rate of descent, flicking a toggle switch to go up or down faster by one foot per second, using a manual control, resembling an oversized pistol grip, to steer laterally.

Radar is very accurately measuring precisely how far you are from touching down. Your computer accepts its word in detail, adjusting to its initial guesses, telling you just where you are.

So close now to the moon. But if you see frightful danger still, you can abort, by using the remaining bit of fuel in the descent engine to take you up again. You can stage the ascent engine, releasing the bottom half of the LM to expose the ascent engine, and fire it to move up and away into orbit and to Collins.

But you like the spot you've found. Quite gently your LM settles down. A blue light flashes, saying "Lunar Contact." You reach out and stop the engine.

The computer, at your request, moves on to program 68, starting to do some of your housekeeping chores in readiness for later departure, telling you precisely where you are, in latitude and longitude, where no man has ever been before. On the moon.

Present Facilities are Strained

By HOMER HALL
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The long-range survey conducted for Bothwell Hospital by the University of Missouri indicated that in 1966 there were 5,208 persons age 64 and over in Pettis County and that this number is expected to increase to 5,414 by 1971. This is approximately 15 percent of the total county population.

Since most patients in nursing homes in the county are well over 65, it is expected that additional beds will be needed in the immediate future.

Total of 227

There are 227 beds now in the county. Rest Haven has 81; Community, 20; Campbell's, 25; Fairview, 55; and Buena Vista, 46.

Fairview, Rest Haven, Sedalia and Campbell's are filled to capacity. Community has 17 patients now and Buena Vista has 34, which means there are only 15 available beds at the present time. Fairview and Rest Haven generally have waiting lists, according to the administrators at those homes. Most of Buena Vista's vacancies are in the men's wards.

It is estimated, according to the University of Missouri report, that Pettis County will need 461 nursing home beds by 1970 which is 234 more than are currently available.

One of the recommendations made in the report was that chronically ill patients in nursing homes should be cared for in special units of general hospitals. Since Bothwell is the only hospital serving the Pettis County area, the responsibility for providing these beds would be theirs, if the suggestion in the report were accepted.

New to City

Don Feedback, administrator of Bothwell Hospital, stated that since this report was published a new 60-bed nursing home has been scheduled to be constructed in Sedalia. "If this home builds 60 long-term beds, then we may not have to enter the field," Feedback said.

The new home will be built by Kenneth Bemis, Denver, Colo., in the Kum Leher addition on the north side of Liberty Park on Liberty Park Blvd.

"The nursing home will be called Liberty Park Manor," Bemis said. "It will be a one-story brick structure," he added.

Features to be included in the home, Bemis said, will be an automatic sprinkler system and piped in oxygen in one wing.

"An automatic sprinkler system is required in all homes in California now," Bemis said, "and I expect it will be required in other states soon. The sprinkler system should help prevent a fire."

Eye on Medicare

Oxygen will be provided, Bemis said, so that the home can qualify as a professional home and have Medicare patients.

The home will also have two therapy rooms and a private chapel, Bemis added.

"FHA approval has been granted," Bemis stated, "and construction should start by September 15 with work completed by April 15."

Bemis also owns a nursing home in Monett. The manager of the home, Stella Bolles, will become the manager of Liberty Park Manor when it is completed, Bemis said.

"We hope to add another 60 beds to the home within two years," Bemis said. "We definitely feel there is a need for more beds in this area."

State mental patients will not be admitted to the home, Bemis said, because the home will lack facilities for them.

Use Welfare Money

A h amount of support varies according to agreements worked out between the nursing home and the welfare office.

For those patients not on charge is their welfare check which may be as low as $85. Other homes will accept welfare patients but require additional money above the amount of their welfare check. The difference must be provided by family or friends.

The welfare office may support a patient up to $125 in a practical nursing home, according to Mrs. Dorothy May, nursing home caseworker.

In a professional nursing home the amount of support varies according to agreements worked out between the nursing home and the welfare office.

For those patients not on welfare, charges range as high as $500 per month at some of the homes.

Lack the Money

Since some of the nursing homes have mostly welfare patients, their funds are limited and, therefore, improvements are difficult to make. It would appear that most of the administrators have a concern for their patients and are doing their best with finances available.

Administrators did complain that reimbursement from the state is considerably lower than what it should be to provide the quality of care recommended in state standards.

Buena Vista is the only non-profit home. The others are profit-making and should make every effort to put their profits back into the homes to improve conditions for the patients.

Basically, the patients are receiving good care, but this care could be improved if activities could be organized to involve the patients.

Kept Flame Alive

Some patients organized their own activities. In one home a couple in their 80's was obviously in love. They could be found in the recreation room holding hands nearly every day, the administrator said.

Picnic of TPA Will Be Held On Thursday

The annual picnic of Post F, Travelers Protective Association, will be held in the Agriculture Building at the State Fairgrounds at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

This picnic is free to each member and his wife or special friend. Admittance will be by dues card. Reservations must be made so enough food can be prepared in time. Entertainment has been arranged.

Due to uncertainty in the weather, the event will be held in the Agriculture Building, instead of the Sheep Pavilion as previously announced.

Reservations must be made by calling 826-8634, 826-6088, or 826-6216. Reservations must be made prior to July 22.

Progress Against Cancer

Thirty years ago one-in-five was saved from cancer, today it is one-in-three according to the American Cancer Society.

One home had a cat which the patients enjoyed talking to. One patient carried on a regular conversation with the cat each day.

A married couple was allowed to live together in the same room in one home but in another one a married couple was separated. At yet another one a mother and daughter were found together in the same room. It seems that all homes should make an effort to keep members of the same family together, when possible.

The people seem fairly contented in all the homes. Perhaps it's because they're not used to more. At the same time it is obvious that the people are lonely. It seems their life could be much more enjoyable if they had something to look forward to each day. Everyone concerned agreed that there is definitely room for improvement.

4-H Livestock Sale Tuesday

The 4-H Livestock Sale will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Swine Pavilion on the State Fairgrounds.

The sale, auctioneered by Colonel Olen Downs, will climax a full day of showing by the 4-H owners, and judging by well-known area stockmen.

Unless the swine embargo is lifted sometime before the show and sale, there will be no swine shown. Beef cattle, but not dairy cattle, will be consigned for the sale.

More Cattle, But No Drop In Price Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers can expect more beef on meat counters during the next few months, but economists say strong demand will tend to keep farm and retail prices near present high levels.

An Agriculture Department report said marketings of fed cattle are expected to be 11 per cent greater during the July-September quarter than a year earlier.

This would be nearly four times the rise in the rate reported for April-June, which showed marketings of slaughter cattle, only 3 per cent ahead of the second quarter in 1968.

Department experts early this year had expected the April-June cattle marketings to be 6 per cent larger than a year earlier, nearly twice the rate of gain actually reported.

The report issued this week was based on surveys in the 22 major cattle feeding states.

The most recent department outlook report says prices paid for slaughter cattle are expected to continue "well above" a year earlier throughout the summer.

Those Who Don't Respect the Flag Appeal Little to a Retired Soldier

Walter J. Wright, who spent 18 years and 10 months in the Air Force, and was a warrant officer in the Army from January, 1966, to Jan. 31, 1969, has no use for anyone who does not respect the American flag for which he fought so long, and saw other young men die.

His most prized possession is the Legion of Merit, authorized by the President of the United States and by an act of Congress on July 20, 1942. The citation reads:

"Chief Warrant Officer W-2 Walter J. Wright distinguished himself by exceptionally meritorious service in a position of great responsibility as S4 Officer, 35th Signal Group, Fort Bragg, N.C., from May, 1967, to January, 1969.

"Warrant Officer Wright organized the Group S4 Section immediately after its activation. He ably overcame seemingly insurmountable obstacles as he established procedures and molded his staff into a highly proficient team. Warrant Officer Wright willingly assumed additional responsibilities and performed functions associated with the newly activated battalion S4 sections which were without qualified supply personnel. In order to successfully meet each challenge, he devoted many hours to research and carefully evaluated directives to gain a complete knowledge of all aspects of supply and maintenance. Warrant Officer Wright's distinguished performance of duty through this period represents outstanding achievement in the finest traditions of the United States Army and reflects the utmost credit upon himself and the military service."

The presentation was made by Lt. Col. Billy E. Haney, group commander at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

There were over 3,000 men in the group, two battalions, 10 companies. The group staff position was normally filled by a major but they had no majors, and so Wright took over the work of training the returnees from Vietnam that they might be ready in case of other activities somewhere else.

He also received the Bronze Star Medal for "Meritorious achievement in ground operations against hostile forces in the Republic of Vietnam during the period 15 April 1966 to 1 April 1967.

Walter J. Wright

Wright was a little too young for World War II, but went into the Air Force before he completed high school. He received his high school diploma and other education in the service. His father, the late Luther J. Wright, was for a number of years plumbing inspector. His mother, Mrs. Marie Wright, is in Campbell's Nursing Home.

Of course the service took him every place and he took his family from place to place as he could. He served in the Marshall Islands from January, 1948 to December 1949; in Europe July, 1951, to November, 1954; Greenland, January through December, 1957; on Guam December, 1959, until December, 1961, and through the entire 22 years he never received a scratch.

He was born in Sedalia and when he was out of service this was the place he wanted to settle down in, so a few years ago, when he was going to Vietnam he bought a home here for his family, at 1020 South New York. Here his wife and four children, Ruth, who is now 13, Michael, 12, Kathryn, 9, and Thomas, 6, waited for his return.

He received another award for exceptionally meritorious conduct in performance of outstanding services May, 1967, to January, 1969. This was signed by Stanley R. Resor, Secretary of the Army, and J. W. Woolnough, General U.S. Army Commanding USCONARC.

It was time, he believed, he should take his retirement and be at home with his family.

"Mothers are wonderful," said Wright, "but they can't give the discipline children need like a father can."

Along with his certificate of retirement is the following: "Department of the Army. Certificate of appreciation to Walter J. Wright, W2 216 512 Chief Warrant Officer W-2 United States Army Reserve.

"On the occasion of your retirement from active service, I wish to extend to you my personal thanks and the sincere appreciation of the United States Army for the many years of outstanding service which you have given to our country. You have helped maintain the security of this nation during a most critical period in its history with a devotion to duty and a spirit of sacrifice in keeping with the proud traditions of the military service.

"I share your pride in the contributions you have made to the Army and its ability to accomplish its mission. I trust that you will maintain and active interest in the Army and its objectives during your retirement.

You take with you my best wishes and those of your comrades for happiness and success in the years that lie ahead." Signed: W. C. Westmoreland, General, United States Army Chief of Staff.

Wright believes that the war in Vietnam has been necessary. The commitment was made a good many years ago, he said, and added: "I'd rather have it there than here."

The Vietnam war is not like other wars, there is no established front line, Wright stated: they have a line, but it is different. He praised General Westmoreland, the Korean troops, which he said were that country's best and other troops fighting with the American troops.

It was a little more than 22 years ago that, as a slim teenager running the elevator at the St. Louis Clothing Store when he wasn't in school, he dreamed of a career in the service.

"It has been a good life," he commented. Through those years of service he had seven or eight years as a radio operator and maintenance one place or another along with electronics, so he was prepared with work he has now gone into in civilian life, field representative for the Radio and Television Supply, Inc., 321 East Main.

Walter Wright reflected on his career in the Armed Services and smiled. "Yes," he said, "I enjoyed all of it, and if I had it to do over, I'd do it again."

Need Cash For Kidney Hospital

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Artificial Kidney Center is running out of money because the Missouri and Kansas legislatures failed to appropriate funds for the project, a spokesman said.

Herb Asel, center administrator, explained Thursday that 70 per cent of the operating funds come from the U.S. Public Health Service and 30 per cent from state and local sources.

The center started accepting patients in November 1967, and now has 22 patients using artificial kidneys in their homes.

A person's ability to pay has never been a factor in accepting patients thus far.

"In the absence of local funding," Asel said, "we undoubtedly will have to require each new patient to show some ability to pay for treatment."

"The average patient needs nine treatments a month," Asel said, "and it costs $40 to $45 per treatment in the home."

Teaching the patients to use the machines at home has cut the cost about one-half, he said.

Asked if the machines would be taken away from current patients unable to pay, Asel said he doubted it.

"The equipment is on loan from the U.S. Public Health Service," he said. "And so long as a patient is on this program I doubt if any government agency would go out and take the equipment away."

But when a machine is released by a patient, it cannot be assigned to a new patient without some proof of ability to pay, Asel said.

Clerical Help From the State Is Provided By a Recent Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Cities, towns, counties and even school districts will be able to get clerical help from the state under a bill passed in the last legislative session.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has not yet signed it into law.

It would let the administrative services section of the state give help to any governmental unit at cost.

Dr. Donald Scriven, chief of the section, said his office is already handling the tax billing operation for St. Charles County. But until now, he said, his office has been operating the service without statutory authority.

Scriven said the new law will let his section make available to any political subdivision in the state the use of a new computer. The number of services available to these units is almost endless.

They include cost accounting programs for police departments, computerized payroll calculations, tax records and just about any administrative function a local government needs done, Scriven said.

School districts may even take advantage of the service. Principals and assistant superintendents spend countless hours every year trying to find a desk and a classroom for every student. A computer can do the job in minutes.

Hard pressed districts can also turn to the state for grade and record keeping, budget preparation and personnel studies.

Scriven said his office recently took over the tax records for a small rural county. "We saved them $800 right off," he said.

Under the law, any bona fide governmental entity will be able to take advantage of the service. Scriven hopes most of them will use the cost accounting facilities because that is the area he feels will offer the most savings.

For instance, street departments can get immediate cost figures on snow removal, street repair, street lighting and so on. "Once a department's operation is programmed for the computer," Scriven said, "we can give them immediate figures on the cost of any job they want to undertake."

City and county hospitals could also benefit from the program. Scriven said food management advice, developed through the use of the computer, will be handy. Many hospitals and other units that provide food service would benefit because they now pay more than they should for food, he said.

Small counties that have trouble keeping up with tax collections will also get help if they want it. Scriven recommends they let his department handle their billing and record keeping.

And county assessors can get help, too.

Nerve Gas Bombs To Go Into Earth

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 21,000 Army nerve gas bombs which were to have been hauled across the country and dumped in the ocean will be disposed of in Colorado in keeping with recommendations from a panel of scientists.

The Army announced Friday it would "disassemble and detoxify" the cluster bombs containing liquid nerve gas at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal near Denver where they are now stored.

Officials said about 2,000 tons of the obsolete gas would be poured into a large, sealed, underground storage area which already contains residue of chemical warfare agents.

About 4,000 tons of less deadly mustard gas is to be burned at the arsenal, according to the Army.

A National Academy of Science's committee made the recommendation June 25 on how the Army should dispose of the obsolete weapons.

The Army said it will take 18 to 30 months to carry out "demilitarization" of the bombs.

Still undecided is how the Army will get rid of another large supply of nerve gas weapons stored in Utah.

The chemicals are part of 27,000 tons of obsolete bombs the Army had planned to haul by train to the East Coast, where they were to be placed on ships and dumped in the Atlantic Ocean. The Army suspended the plan after congressional outcries.

Meanwhile, the continuing attack on U.S. gas and germ warfare development was fueled Friday by reports there had been an accident July 8 involving nerve gas on Okinawa. The Pentagon confirmed 24 persons had been hospitalized for six hours observation "as a result of a mishap" but would not comment on a report that a container of highly secret gas had broken open.

Repair Job Begins

The $375,000 reproduction of Christopher Columbus' flagship Santa Maria rests on a special cradle after it was raised almost completely out of the water at the St. Louis Ship Co., yards. Part of the large hole in the hull can be seen near the stern of the ship. The Santa Maria sank on the Illinois side of the Mississippi River after it was torn loose from its mooring on the St. Louis riverfront in a recent storm. Owners of the vessel hope to have the repairs completed by the end of August. (UPI)

Higginsville Centennial in August

By Hazel Lang
HIGGINSVILLE — "Plows, Picks and Planes," an historical pageant of Higginsville's century of life, will be a feature of that town's Centennial for five nights, Aug. 11-15, at the Fairgrounds park.

The Centennial, however, begins on Aug. 8, with the Centennial Ball and Queen Coronation on Saturday evening, Aug. 9.

Sunday, Aug. 10, will be "Faith of our Father's Day," with a combined Interfaith Vesper Program and mass choir at the Fairgrounds.

August 11 will be Homecoming Day, an aerial bombardment announcing the Centennial; the Centennial parade and midway and fun zone opening.

Aug. 12 will be Ladies Day, with hobby and arts and crafts displays, country style breakfast, white collar girls' luncheon, ladies centennial tea and style show, and a free square dance.

August 13 will be Youth Day, with youth hobby, arts and crafts display; youth parade, special youth talent show.

August 14 will be Pioneer and Agriculture Day, with agriculture equipment display, "Then and Now," old fashioned thrashing bee, fiddlers contest, barbershop quartets, old fashioned Bar-B-Que.

August 15 is Good Neighbor and Industry Day with tour and open house of local industries and businesses, display of products manufactured in Lafayette County, time capsule ceremonies, municipal building, and grand parade.

After the pageant each night will be a huge fireworks display.

Centennial headquarters is in a nice building downtown and was donated by Mrs. Effie Corbin. It is air-conditioned, with one section with comfortable chairs and small tables. The counter in front of the business office is covered with red bandana handkerchiefs and hanging on a dress rack are an assortment of centennial costumes.

Everything seems to revolve around Dorothy Brokaw who flits around in her centennial costume and too many petticoats when she gets out of an air-conditioned place. These long, full dresses that were worn a century ago when such a thing as air conditioning was unheard of.

Dorothy has been at this centennial planning and working since last October, and she is getting a little weary. If she can just make it through August 15, she has it made.

But what about the cleaning up afterwards? Well, somebody had better appoint a clean-up committee quick, and Dorothy doesn't want to be on it.

There are women in the headquarters working, some like Dorothy in centennial dresses, some in modern attire, and there are men everywhere with beards, including Dorothy's husband who gets to do all the little jobs she saves up for him.

A very young man with very dark hair and beard is busy at the headquarters, too. He doesn't belong in Higginsville but he is working hard trying to get the spectacular pageant, with some 300 people, under way. He is the director.

Every woman and girl is a centennial belle, and she wears a big button with a bell on it to prove it. They get a certificate, too, as do the "Brothers of the Brush," who promise to grow whiskers, and everybody is having a gay time getting ready for the big week of events.

Mrs. Joe Reed, one of Higginsville's oldest citizens, in her late nineties, is planning to ride in the parade. She knows that her costume is arranged for and she even suggested that maybe they could put one of her big old chairs on a truck so she could sit in it.

Everybody in Higginsville seems to be getting ready to turn back the pages of history a century and they seem to be having fun doing it.

Nursing Home Opening is Set For July 27

CALIFORNIA — Windsor Estates Convalescent Center will have its formal opening July 27 with an open house between 1:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

The home, which overlooks Proctor Park on Highway 87 in south California, will open its doors to residents July 28. Its 29 semi-private rooms and two private ones will accommodate 60 persons.

Wayne Woodard is administrator and Mrs. Hazel Bowline is director of nurses and assistant administrator. There are six area doctors on the staff.

Windsor Estates was built by local investors.

Strike Insurance Program Launched

DETROIT (AP) — The Associated General Contractors of America has begun a strike insurance program for its 9,000 members, says William E. Stewart, executive director of the association's Detroit chapter.

Stewart said Thursday applications have been mailed to the contractor—members of the association.

The policy, underwritten by Lloyd's of London, was written by the Arch Insurance Co. of Bermuda, British West Indies. Under the coverage, the underwriters will pay a struck contractor $100,000 a day for up to 60 working days.

The policy becomes effective on Jan. 1, 1970 and runs for five years. The annual premium is $360,000.

Puts Her Husband Up for High Bidder

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, England (AP) — Eva Brunson had a row with her husband and put this card in the window of her newsstand:

"Husband for sale (second hand)—offers. Inquire within." Mrs. Brunson told inquirers that her spouse, Harry, was a 48-year-old civil servant, "part worn, but good-looking, with no gray hairs."

"It was all done in fun," she said. "I wouldn't really consider any offer for Harry. Not even for a million pounds."

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP) — A list of weapons found in a Minutemen hideout in the New Mexico desert ranging from modern semi-automatic rifles and cyanide gas to bows and arrows has been filed by the FBI in U.S. District Court here.

Special agent in charge Thomas Jordan filed the list Thursday after agents searched the isolated house near Truth or Consequences, N.M., where Robert DePugh, leader of the militant, anti-Communist organization was arrested Saturday along with an aide, Walter Peyson.

The FBI said its agents found 29 rifles, 25 cans of cyanide gas, and several bows and arrows, some of which had hand grenades attached to them.

The list included thousands of rounds of ammunition, hundred of pounds of dynamite and three homemade bombs, containing dynamite, nails and blasting caps.

Other items included a land mine, revolvers and automatic pistols with silencers, shotguns, and primers, powder and shot for hand-loading ammunition.

The list was prefaced by a summary saying that the firearms, explosives, ammunition, destructive devices and blasting accessories were unregistered and were in violation of the 1969 Gun Control Act.

DePugh and Peyson still were being held in the Bernalillo County, N.M., jail pending transfer to Missouri to meet firearms violation charges.

Griffin Joins Night Owl Club

NEW YORK (AP) — Physically, it's a minor move: Four blocks uptown and three blocks east. But it may be the most important one in the durable career of Merv Griffin.

On Aug. 18 Griffin and company, for the past four years a popular and widely syndicated talk-variety show, will start working for CBS, joining the late-night battle with Johnny Carson of NBC and Joey Bishop of ABC.

All three of these 90-minute after-hours shows are frank and unabashed variations of the format honed smooth by Jack Paar. CBS had been debating the pros and cons of adding one to its schedules for several seasons and made the plunge at a time when its affiliated stations' supplies of old movies were wearing thin and the prospect of getting more was slim.

Viewers who have been catching the Griffin show at assorted hours, as it is played on local stations around the nation, may find it little changed. Merv hopes so.

Since CBS has hired Griffin Productions, Griffin's entire staff — his musical director and, of course, Arthur Treacher — make the move with him.

"The set will be different," said Griffin. "There won't be any cameras in front of the studio audience. We'll have a bigger orchestra. I've agreed to do some of the commercials, and so has Treacher."

"But our biggest bonus will be time. It has been about three weeks between the time we taped our syndicated shows and the time they were broadcast. This made awful complications — we didn't dare to do anything that really was timely because it might backfire. We'd had Robert Kennedy on a show a month before he was killed — but his death was something we couldn't even discuss on the show."

Under the new regime, Griffin will tape his show at 6:30 p.m. in New York each night for broadcast at 11:30. This will give him an hour's jump on the nearby Carson show — and the network censors an extra 60 minutes to inspect the evening's work and, if necessary, order up some blips for words judged unsuitable for viewers' ears.

Reports have leaked around that executives of some affiliates are a bit nervous about the occasional blue ting that colors the Griffin air during some conversational exchanges, but Merv says he has no plans to make any changes in his approaches, types of guests or method of operation.

"I don't do any preparation," he said. "If I prepared, I wouldn't do a good show. I won't look ahead—I don't know until 5 p.m. who we'll be seeing later in the day."

"The staff comes into my office at 5, and for a half an hour or so we'll discuss the general areas of talk we'll get into."

He never sees the evening's

Griffin Group-In

Merv Griffin and company are moving to CBS with their talk-variety show. The format will remain basically the same, but taping the night of the show will give greater immediacy; and there are other advantages to make the new arrangement an attractive package. Shown here are Merv Griffin and three recent guests: from top, Pablo Casals, the cellist, Mrs. Rose Kennedy and singer Harry Belafonte. (AP) guests ahead of time. And he has a passionate dislike of cue cards—"you can always see people reading; I'll use them only if it's a song I don't know well. And sometimes a comedian will ask for them."

Bob Shanks, Merv's producer, really organizes the show. There are four staff members who do nothing but audition acts, visit entertainment spots in New York looking for new talent, or fly to places out of town—such as Los Angeles and Las Vegas—looking for fresh material.

As a result of this systematic scouring, Griffin's show has given some promising young talent their first important chance. JoAnn Worley, the noisy swinger of "Laugh-In" was found in a downtown New York nightclub. Alisha Kashi, an Israeli entertainer, was singing in a Jewish nightclub when she was spotted by Griffin scouts—and now commands $10,000 in the nightclubs. Dick Cavett, Woody Allen, George Carlin also were among his finds.

Griffin, who was hired by Freddy Martin as a band singer when he was 19, is one of the most successful business operators in show business. Now in his early 40s, Griffin was a recording star and had moved in and out of films before he found his place in television.

His Griffin Productions also turns out "Jeopardy," a game show on NBC.

Firemen Rescued By the Civilians

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Neighbors rescued several firemen from the second floor of a burning building Thursday.

Several firemen ran into the house to see if anyone was trapped inside. When they reached the second story they realized they were trapped.

Neighbors, seeing the firemen hanging out windows gasping for breath, ran to a nearby building and returned with a ladder.

Texans Had to Admit Wilderness Wonderland Couldn't be Tamed

BIG BEND NATIONAL PARK, Tex. (AP) — This is a country forged in the fires of volcanic convulsion—a land wildly beautiful, but so tough, lonesome and forbidding that Texas never could put its brand on her tumbled wastelands of mountain, canyon and desert.

It is a wonderland where time stood still, an impregnable fortress that frustrated the march of civilization for centuries; a wilderness unspoiled through all the ages.

It is a formidable desert gouged by deep arroyos, where a dust devil does a whirling dervish dance for the buzzards circling silently overhead, and a coyote howls mournfully from a distant slope.

It is a magnificent mountain, sheer sides sculptured by ages of erosion into castles, cathedrals and battlements, thrusting its proud head high into misty skies.

It is a mighty canyon, the handiwork of eons of patient scouring by the eternal Rio Grande, with sheer walls towering 1,800 feet tall and ramparts bursting into red fire in the rays of the setting sun.

It is a great white dunes of volcanic ash looking like ancient glaciers, and black volcanic rock strewn helter-skelter over the slopes and down the canyons—leftovers from the violent cataclysm in which the land was born.

It is the Big Bend National Park country of Texas—the meanest, most cantankerous, hottest, chilliest, driest, wettest, loneliest, prettiest and most soul-satisfying hunk of the Lone Star state. And it is one place where, when you hear a Texas tall tale, pardner, you better believe it.

"Lonesome" sticks out as the perfect word to describe this country. The feeling is expressed in a tale told by Virginia Madison, Big Bend historian, about a cowboy and a U.S. Cavalryman pinned down behind a boulder in a shootout with bandits.

The cowboy holstered his gun, rolled a cigarette, leaned back against the rock, and listened for a while to the ping and whine of the outlaw bullets. Then he told his companion, thoughtfully, "Bullets sure make a lonesome sound here in the Big Bend, don't they?"

Finally convinced that they could never break this wild maverick of a country, Texas decided, so to speak, to fence it in and make it a showpiece. They ceded 708,000 acres to the United States for creation of a park dedicated in 1955.

At the time, most Texans weren't aware of such spectacular scenery stuck down in the Big Bend, where the Rio Grande goes on a meandering, 107-mile detour around the jagged, brilliantly-colored Chisos Mountain range. Only a few had seen it, because it was so isolated and hard to get to.

Even now, though thousands of travelers rough it each year on this last frontier of the old Southwest, some of the park's most breathtaking beauty spots can be reached only on the back of a horse or burro, or by hiking narrow, dizzy-steep trails.

Boxed off from the rest of Texas by the Southern Pacific Railroad in its run from San Antonio to El Paso, the Big Bend actually is two separate, distinctively different countries.

Along the top stand huge cattle and sheep ranches, symbols of the courage of settlers who endured a savage ordeal against wild Plains Indians, desper-

The Haunted Deserts

Weather worn grave markers give mute testimony that this country broke the backs of strong pioneers who tried to tame her. The scene is of the ghost town of Terlingua, on the edge of the Big Bend country, Texas. Its period of quicksilver-mining prosperity lasted from 1900 to 1946. Today only a few families live there, near the ruins of a store, a church, a school and many adobe houses. (AP) south rim of the Chisos, reached in a 14-mile horseback trip from The Basin along forest trails and across stream beds and meadows. At the rim, an immense panorama of sky and country opens up, embracing a large chunk of Texas north of the Rio Grande and sweeping so deep across the tumbled face of Mexico to the south that it is said "you can see the day after tomorrow."

It is 39 miles westward from The Basin to Santa Elena Canyon, across a weird landscape that seems to belong to some other planet. Ashes of volcanic fires—stark evidence of the violence that occurred in the dim, distant time when this country was forming—lie heaped in huge white drifts on the slopes and in the gullies. Black volcanic rock fragments litter the land. This appears to be a dumping ground for materials

Greatest Wonder

The Big Bend country of Texas is a land of spectacularly vivid contrasts, of rivers, mountains, plains and deserts, plants and rocks. "It is what Beethoven reached for in music; it is panorama without beginning or end." (AP)

High, sheer walls overhand the winding river, a cathedral-like place of awesome immensity and solitude. The Santa Elena Canyon of Big Bend, Texas, was carved by the Rio Grande through the Mesa de Anguila, a massive, uplifted block of limestone pitted with huge caves and carved in places like an Egyptian temple. (AP) left over when the Big Bend was made.

Over this plain in centuries of flooding, the river deposited deep layers of rich silt. The ruins of adobe farm buildings show that some pioneers tried to plant it, but failed because the land was too isolated, the road to market too hard and dangerous.

Now the plain teems with animals and birds unable to survive in the hostile desert and confined for their lifetimes to this narrow zone along the river. Some species are found nowhere else in the United States.

Hike across this plain, ford the shallow tributary, Terlingua Creek, and you are at the mouth of the last of the river's three architectural fantasies, Santa Elena Canyon. Sheer, impressive walls have been cut through the Mesa de Anguila, a massive, uplifted block of limestone pitted with huge caves and carved in places like an Egyptian temple.

From here, State Highway 18 offers an alternate route, and more of the country's varied beauty, in the return to the part of Texas everybody knows. But the strange beauty of this land that time forgot will linger long in memory.

"In a lifetime spent in traveling," said author-artist Ludwig Bemelmans, "here I came upon the greatest wonder. The mantle of God touches you; it is what Beethoven reached for in music; it is panorama without beginning or end.

"It will make you breathe deeply whenever you think of it, for you have inhaled eternity."

Afternoon Ceremony Joins Miss Todd, Kenneth Nichols

Mrs. Kenneth Edward Nichols (Lehmer Studio)

OTTERVILLE — Baskets of yellow gladioli and white majestic daisies enhanced the altar of the Baptist Church July 5 as Miss Peggy Lynn Todd and Airman Kenneth Edward Nichols were united in marriage.

The Rev. James F. Todd, brother of the bride, Columbia, officiated at the afternoon double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Todd, Otterville, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Nichols, Columbia.

Mrs. Cecil Cave, organist, played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Miss Joyce Stotler, Columbia, as she sang "One Hand, One Heart" and "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a street length white linen A-line dress styled with jewel neckline, short cap sleeves and lace banded hemline. A double Dior bow of white linen secured her shoulder length illusion veil and she carried a cascade of white daisies and stephanotis, centered with yellow sweetheart roses.

Matron of honor, Mrs. David Nichols, Columbia, sister-in-law of the groom, was attired in a yellow linen dress. She wore a daisy cluster headdress with matching yellow veil, and carried a nosegay of yellow daisies.

The groom chose his brother, David Nichols, Columbia, as best man. Ushers were Jim Nichols, brother of the groom, and John Hamlin.

Mrs. Todd chose a melon pink shantung ensemble and white accessories for her daughter's wedding. The mother of the groom, Mrs. Nichols, was attired in a pink A-line ensemble and matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

Mrs. Estelle Todd, Pilot Grove, and Mrs. C. R. Pickerill, Grove, Okla., grandmothers of the bride and groom, respectively, were presented with white carnation corsages.

A reception was held following the ceremony with Mrs. Douglas Glenn, Miss Sherry Herndon, both of Otterville, and Mrs. Siegel Clements, Knob Noster, serving. Mrs. Robert Williams, Knob Noster, was in charge of the gift book and Yvonne Otten and Cheryl Griffith presided at the gift table.

Yellow and white streamers and white wedding bells decorated the reception area. The bride's table, covered with lace, was centered with a two-tiered cake, topped with white wedding bells.

The bride is a 1968 graduate of Otterville High School and has been employed with the Silvey Corp., Columbia. The groom, a Fulton High graduate, attended Crowder Junior College, Neosho, before entering the U.S. Air Force.

The couple will reside in Denver, Colo., where the groom is currently stationed at Lowry AFB.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cole, Odessa; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thompson, Southwest City; Mr. and Mrs. Ed White, Tulsa, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pally, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Pally and Miss Pat Dinwiddie, all of Columbia.

Enrolls in School

BOSTON, Mass. — The Katharine Gibbs School has announced the enrollment of Miss Charlene Marie O'Connor as a resident student in the special course for college women. Miss O'Connor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. O'Connor, 901 West Broadway, Sedalia, is a graduate of Sacred Heart High School.

The Gibbs school is in its 52nd year of training young women for executive secretarial positions.

Couple Observes Golden Year

SMITHTON — Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Cox, Sr., were honored recently in observance of their Golden Wedding Anniversary.

A special morning worship service at Providence Church was dedicated to the honored couple. The Rev. William Morgan, pastor, chose for his message, "The Marriage at Cana." His text was taken from the Gospel of St. John, Chap. 2. The Rev. William Sutton gave the benediction. Seated with Mr. and Mrs. Cox were their two children, three grandchildren, five great-grandchildren, and Mr. Cox's brother, A. H. Cox. A fourth granddaughter, Mrs. Donna Padrez, New York City, was unable to attend but telephoned.

A noon buffet for the immediate family was held at the Cox home.

Pfc. Herbert Spencer Cox, USMC and Miss Grace Virginia Potter were united in marriage June 25, 1919, at the home of the late Rev. Zeb Thomas. Attending the couple were Ad Johnson, Smithton, the late Sallie Johnson, sister of Mrs. Cox, and Mrs. Stanley Andrews, Alamo, Tex., sister of Mr. Cox. Mr. Johnson was the only member of the original wedding party present, as Mrs. Andrews was unable to attend due to illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox have resided in the Smithton community all their married life with the exception of Mr. Cox's re-enlistment and discharge from the U.S. Marine Corp. after World War II.

In honor of their parents, the couple's children, Herbert S. Cox, Jr. and wife, Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. Jo Kathryn Fricke and husband, Sedalia, were hosts at a reception at the church for approximately 200 friends and relatives, among whom were Mrs. Cox's two brothers, B. H. Potter and Lewis Potter, a sister, Mrs. Daisy Higdon, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Ruth Potter.

The serving table was covered with an heirloom linen cloth accented at each corner by nosegays and golden mum cascades. The table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake. Garlands of smilax and mums interspersed by golden tapers with silver

Celebrations Are Planned

LaMONTE — Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Carroll will celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary July 27 with an open house from 2 to 5 p.m., given by their children and grandchildren. The couple requests no gifts.

VERSAILLES — Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Bohling will observe their Golden Wedding Anniversary July 27 with an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Methodist Church hall on North Fisher Street.

The Bohlings were married July 27, 1919, at the home of the bride's parents in Stover. They have seven children, Ward, Ogden, Utah; Mrs. John R. Lyle, Springfield, Va.; Mrs. Elmer Klein, Jr., Waterloo, Ia.; James, St. Louis; Stanley and Larry, both of Jesup, Ia., and Bob, Kansas City. They have 14 grandchildren. The couple requests no gifts.

appointments completed the setting.

Assisting at the reception were granddaughters of the honorees, Mrs. Linda Gibbs, Mrs. Nancy Sutton, Mrs. Janet Fricke, and a niece, Mrs. Challis Johnson. Assisting generally were Mrs. Logan Seigel, Mrs. William Turner, Mrs. Erma Snow, Mrs. A. B. Green, and Mrs. Rosalie DeLozier.

Attending the guest book was Mrs. Mary Jeanette Hurt, a niece, and in attendance at the gift table was a niece, Mrs.

Lucille Todd, assisted by Miss Sue Heckart.

Displayed at the front of the sanctuary were the wedding pictures of the couple and the bridal bouquet carried by Mrs. Cox fifty years ago.

For the occasion, Mrs. Cox wore two yellow cymbidium orchids given by her children and Mr. and Mrs. William Steele, childhood friends of the honorees.

Background organ music was furnished by Mrs. Rosalie DeLozier.

Out of town guests were Allen

H. Cox, San Juan, Puerto Rico; Mr. and Mrs. Don Johnson and daughter, Arlington Heights, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Smith and daughter, Prairie Village, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Potter, Columbia, and Mr. and Mrs. William Steele, Warsaw.

Tipton Bride Is Married In Minnesota Ceremony

ROCHESTER, MINN. — In an evening candlelight ceremony July 5, at St. John's Catholic Church Miss Betty Jo Veulemans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Veulemans, Tipton, and Julius Hummel Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Hummel Sr., Bowling Green, were united in marriage.

The Rev. Fr. Trocinski officiated at the double ring ceremony before an altar flanked with baskets of yellow gladioli and white mums.

Sister Virginia Gruzak, O.S.U., played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Sister Ann Hughes, S.S.J., Sister Patricia Greely, C.S.C., Miss Blandina Hummel and Mrs. Weidmeyer as they sang "Sing To The Lord," "The Lord's Prayer" and "Like An Olive Branch." Miss Blanche Padgett, sister of the groom, sang "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a floor length gown of organza over summer crepe with sheer sleeves gathered into wide cuffs. Re-embroidered appliques of lace accented the front hemline. Her shoulder length veil of illusion fell from a portrait crown and she carried an Edwardian bouquet of white daisies, yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Maid of honor, Miss Judy Deters, was attired in a princess style gown of yellow, satin striped cotton and carried a bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses and white daisies. Her headdress was a yellow organza bow.

The groom chose his brother, Herman Hummel, to serve as best man.

Ushering duties were performed by Henry Deters Jr., and Bill Veulemans, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride was attired in an aqua mint summer crepe dress with matching accessories. The mother of the groom wore a powder blue knit jacket dress with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of yellow rosebuds.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Marian Hall. Miss Dorothy Hummel was in charge of the guest book. Miss Gwen Steben and Mrs.

Dale Mahns were in charge of the reception, with Miss Mary Anna Hummel and Miss Eva Hummel serving.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Missouri, Columbia, and recently graduated from Saint Mary's Dietetic Internship program, Rochester, Minn. The groom served in the Marine Corps in Vietnam and is presently a junior in the college of agriculture, University of Missouri, Columbia.

The couple resides in Columbia.

Miss Rita Marie Howard, Stanley Bowlin are Wed

Mrs. Stanley Dale Bowlin

GREEN RIDGE — Wedding vows were solemnized July 5 at Green Baptist Church by Miss Rita Marie Howard and Stanley Dale Bowlin.

The Rev. Kenneth Roller officiated at the evening double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Howard, Green Ridge, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Bowlin, Route 1, Sedalia.

Pyramid candelabra arranged with yellow killion daisies flanked the church rostrum which was centered with large emerald palms, accented with white satin bows.

Miss Shirley Ryan, organist, played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Doug Roller as he sang, "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Candlelighters, Miss Chris Fiedler and Miss Cathy Fiedler, wore floor length A-line gowns of yellow linen fashioned with a panel train which fell from a bow at the bodice top. A triple-tiered bow held their veils and each wore a wrist corsage of white daisies and carried yellow candles surrounded with flowers and satin ribbon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a chalk white gown of silk organza and Venice lace in a Renaissance silhouette, styled with long full sleeves, small standup collar and lace-trimmed bodice. A small lace bonnet held her lace framed, full length veil of illusion and she carried a cascade of white marguerite daisies, yellow garnett roses and ivy.

The bride chose her sister, Mrs. Beverly Gillette, Mountainburg, Ark., as matron of honor. Bridesmaid was Mrs. Connie Bowlin, sister-in-law of the groom, Windsor. The attendants wore gowns identical to those worn by the candlelighters and each carried a cascade of white marguerite daisies centered with candles and yellow satin ribbon.

A White and Pink Setting For Robinson—Hanna Vows

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Miss Aynsley Ellen Robinson, daughter of Maj. (CF) and Mrs. A. V. Robinson, Colorado Springs, Colo., and 1st Lt. Rodney Eugene Hanna, (USAF), son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Hanna, formerly of Sedalia, now of Edina, Minn., were united in marriage June 28 at Grace Episcopal Church.

The Rev. Robert G. Hewitt officiated at the afternoon ceremony before an altar adorned with candelabra and arrangements of white gladioli and white and pink mums.

Organist, Dr. J. Julius Baird, accompanied Maj. Robinson as he sang, "O Lord Most Holy."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a gown of white organza over silk peau, fashioned in a princess cage silhouette and featuring a detachable chapel train edged with small floral motifs of Venice lace. Matching lace was repeated around the mini yoke, which was styled with jewel neckline and short sleeves. Her three-tiered elbow length veil of silk illusion fell from a Venice lace tiara highlighted with crystals and seed pearls and she carried a white gladioli, surrounded by stephanotis, pink rose buds and ivy.

Matron of honor, Mrs. D. B. Jordan, sister of the bride, was attired in a floor length gown of candy pink striped cotton styled with ruffled V-neckline, and empire waist outlined in Venice lace and avocado velvet. She wore a large Dior bow with avocado velvet trim in her hair and carried a bouquet of white daisies. Bridesmaids Miss Susan Beyer and Miss Laurie Baker, were attired in gowns identical to that worn by the matron of honor.

Carol Rosemary Gloth, Albert Anderson are Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leroy Anderson

In an afternoon ceremony June 28 at Calvary Baptist Church, Miss Carol Rosemary Gloth, 906 South Osage, became the bride of Albert Leroy Anderson, Hughesville.

The Rev. Charles Hendrickson officiated at the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Palmer, Kansas City, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Anderson, Hughesville.

Mrs. Ernest Gehlken, organist, accompanied Miss Sandy Dewitt as she sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "One Hand, One Heart."

John Anderson, brother of the groom, and Ricky Keer, cousin of the bride, lighted the tapers in two pyramid candelabra which flanked a tall floral arrangement of white, peach and pastel yellow gladioli.

Given in marriage by her brother, Larry Gloth, Kansas City, the bride selected a floor length empire gown of veiled silk organza and imported, hand-clipped Belgian lace. The heightened bodice featured a scalloped sabrina neckline, long tapering sleeves, and tiered Watteau train of lace falling from the shoulders to chapel length. A front panel of organza, framed by scalloped lace enhanced the A-line skirt. A miniature forward cluster of lace and pearl petals secured her short bouffant veil of silk illusion and she carried an Edwardian bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, baby's breath, white stock and ribbon. Her only jewelry, a heart-shaped pendant with diamond setting, was a gift from the groom. The groom's jewelry was a white-gold ID bracelet, a gift from the bride.

Matron of honor, Jane Chappell, state of Oklahoma, and bridesmaids, Mrs. Jane Marriott, Mrs. Janice Lilly and Mrs. Wanda Banner, Clinton, wore floor length empire gowns of light yellow satin featuring a bow trim at the midriff. Their headpieces were yellow satin rings and tulle veils, and each carried a Victorian bouquet of peach gladioli, yellow baby's breath and foliage, accented with ribbon.

Serving as best man was Bill Wall, Houstonia. Groomsman were Ronald Gloth, brother of the bride, Kansas City, Tommy Lilly and Onlee Banner, Clinton. Ushers were Larry Brooks, William Latta, cousin of the bride, Kansas City, Jim Gregory and Galen Alfrey, Kansas City.

Flowergirls, Misses Deanna Gloth and Karla Derkits, nieces of the bride, carried princess baskets of peach tinted petals. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gloth and Mrs. Michael Derkits, respectively, all of Kansas City. Ringbearer, Master David Gloth, brother of Miss Deanna Gloth, carried the rings on a satin pillow.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Palmer chose a pale pink lace sheath, matching coat and accessories and pink cymbidium orchid corsage. The mother of the groom was attired in an A-line dress of beige lace, brown accessories and ivory cymbidium orchid corsage.

A reception was held following the ceremony. Serving were Mrs. Sharon Derkits, Miss Mary Kawiecki and Miss Janice Kawiecki, all sisters of the bride from Kansas City, Miss Mary L. Anderson, sister of the groom, Hughesville, and Miss Susan Hill, cousin of the groom, Sacramento, Calif.

The bride's table was covered with floor length white tiered lace over yellow satin and garlanded with smilax and yellow satin bows. The four-tiered wedding cake, trimmed with yellow roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom, was flanked by yellow tapers in silver candelabra. A silver punch service completed the table appointments.

Mrs. Joyce Alfrey, Kansas City, was in charge of the guest book. Presiding at the gift table were Miss Elva Klein, Hughesville, Miss Diane Weisner and Miss Betty Robb.

For a wedding trip to the Lodge of the Four Seasons, Lake of the Ozarks, the bride chose a yellow A-line dress trimmed in white, white accessories and corsage of yellow garnett roses and white daisies.

The bride, a 1962 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, is employed with Town and Country Shoes, Sedalia. The groom, a 1962 graduate of Hughesville High School, is presently employed with Panhandle Eastern Pipeline Co., Houstonia.

The couple resides in Hughesville.

Showers honoring the bride-elect were given by Mrs. Jane Marriott and Mrs. Janice Lilly.

Parents of the groom hosted a rehearsal dinner for members of the wedding party June 27 at State Fair Restaurant.

To Attend Workshop

Joleene Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vene Miller, Sweet Springs, will attend the Casavant Marching Band Workshop July 21-26, at Augustana College, Rock Island, Ill. Miss Miller, a junior at R 7 High School, has been a majorette in the school band for six years, and head majorette the past four years.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Jordan, Vancouver, B. C., Canada; Mrs. G. M. Nassif, Montreal, Quebec, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Hanna, Edina, Minn., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Hanna, Minneapolis, Minn.

Linda Lucas and Michael Intelmann Exchange Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Intelmann

Miss Linda Lucas and Michael Intelmann were united in marriage July 3 at the home of the Rev. William Morgan in Sedalia.

Rev. Morgan officiated at the morning double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Coy Lucas, Florence, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Intelmann, Cole Camp.

The bride was attired in a street length gown of Chantilly lace over satin, styled with satin bodice, high neckline, long lace sleeves and two-tiered lace skirt. Her shoulder length veil of illusion was secured by a white rosebud headpiece and she carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies.

Maid of honor, Miss Sharon Hodder, California, wore a pink street length dress and corsage of pink-tipped white carnations. Michael Bruce, Jefferson City, was best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Lucas selected a lavender street length dress and black accessories. The mother of the groom was attired in a gray-blue ensemble and beige accessories.

A reception was held at American Legion Hall, Cole Camp, the evening of the wedding. Serving were Misses Janice and Glenda Lucas, sisters of the bride.

The bride's table was centered with two wedding bells, flanked by tall white tapers in crystal candelabra. The three-tiered wedding cake was trimmed with pink rosebuds and topped with four wedding bells tied with ribbon edged in lace. The cake was baked and cut by Mrs. Fred Koeller, aunt of the groom.

Mrs. Russell Lucas, sister-in-law of the bride, was in charge of the guest book. Misses Susan and Bets Tababen and Thea Brandt presided at the gift table which was covered with a white cloth and centered under white wedding bells and green streamers. Bouquets of mixed garden flowers completed the setting.

The new Mrs. Intelmann is a graduate of Knob Noster High School and the Jefferson City School of Practical Nursing. The groom, is a graduate of Benton County R-1 High School and Linn Technical College, where he majored in electronics.

The couple will reside in Kansas City, where the groom is employed in the TV and radio department of Sears, Roebuck and Co.

For a wedding trip to the state of California the bride selected a lime green knit dress and black patent accessories.

The bride, a Smith-Cotton graduate, attended Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg. The groom is a graduate of Sacred Heart High School and Central Missouri State College. The couple resides at 2324 West Third.

The Rev. Fr. Lawrence Growney officiated at the morning double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hammond, 1811 West Fifth, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude L. Boul, 620 West Third.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a pink organza dress and coat ensemble, with collar trim of white milk beads and rhinestones, and a matching pink veil made by the bride. She carried a bouquet of pink roses surrounded by white stephanotis and ivy.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Janet Monsees, Hermosa Lake, was attired in a silk dress of deep pink trimmed with pearl beading.

Serving as best man was Harry D. Boul, 1900 West Third.

Ushers were Claude L. Boul, St. Charles; Donald Barnes, Sedalia; James Mollenbeck, St. Charles and William Lewis Hammond, Champaign, Ill.

Flowergirl was Miss Nancy Mollenbeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Mollenbeck. Ringbearer was Master Terry Joe Reine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jody Reine, 1003 Royal.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hammond chose a deep pink lace ensemble and matching accessories. The mother of the groom was attired in an ensemble of pale blue lace and matching accessories.

PRIVACY FOR BED ROOM WING

Kitchen is corridor type with surplus cabinets, counter top and built-in oven and surface unit.

Breakfast area is adjacent, located in recessed bay to rear and has drop ceiling above.

Utilities are tucked away in separate room but convenient to kitchen. This room doubles as mud room for entrance from either back yard or double garage.

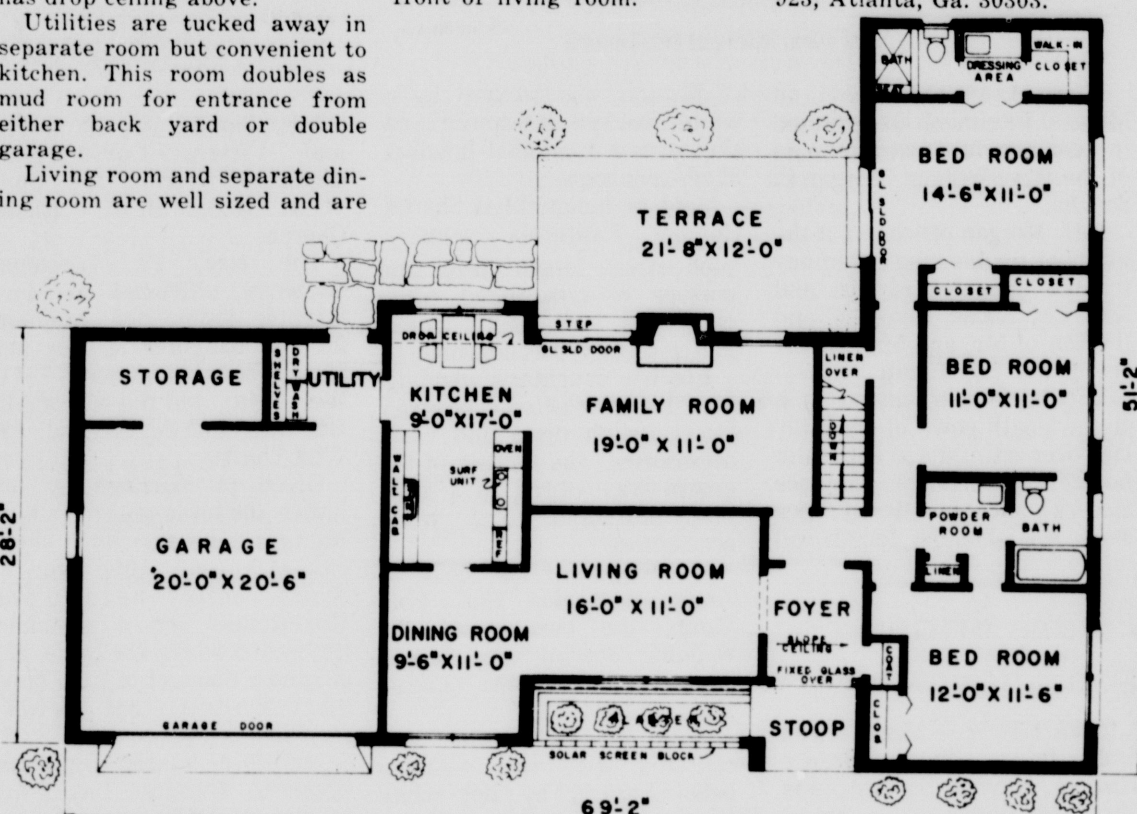

Living room and separate dining room are well sized and are located to avoid unnecessary traffic passing through. Extra storage is provided to rear of garage.

A special finishing touch is the planter located in recess in front of living room.

Total square footage is 1,654 with garage of 584 square feet and terrace of 259 square feet.

The plan number is 610. For further information write W. D. Farmer, 15 Peachtree Bldg., Rm. 923, Atlanta, Ga. 30303.

Floating Hotel Planned For Lake

ELDON — Plans to construct a $2.5 million floating hotel on the Lake of the Ozarks at Paradise Cove off Highway 54 near Bagnell Dam have been announced by Charles F. Cherry and Associates, developer of the project.

A.C.S. Enterprises, Eldon, will purchase the franchise to construct and operate the facility.

The hotel will contain more than 100 rooms. Other facilities include an elevator to the various floors, a restaurant with a large ballroom and lounge on the all-weather roof, private meeting rooms, shops and stores, swimming pool and a marina.

There will also be a float-in restaurant for the use of boat owners and their guests.

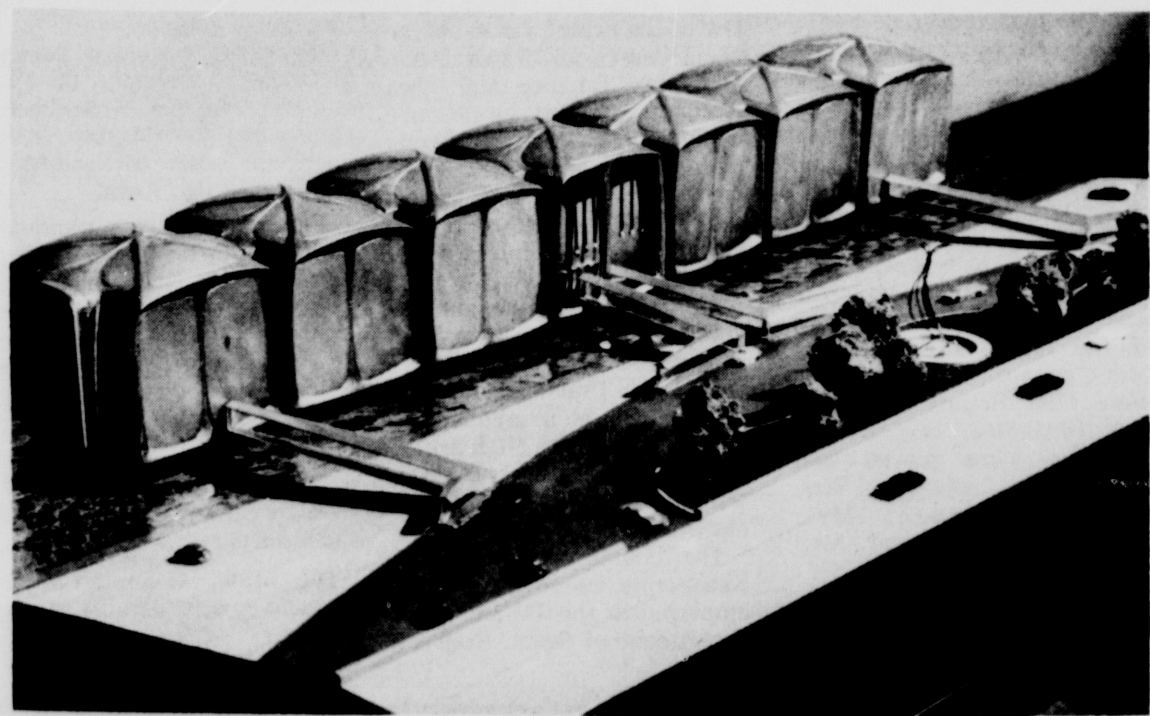

The facility will be named the Bo'tel Ozark after its "sister ship," Bo'tel St. Louis, which is planned for the St. Louis riverfront.

The facility will be of modular design and will consist of several completely self-contained modules which, when placed in series, become one rigid unit. Each module will be five stories high, featuring a domed starlight roof for dining and entertainment.

Framework of the modules will be copper toned steel and the walls and roof dome will be reflective gold glass panels from the outside that will allow an unobstructed view of the lake and sky from the inside.

"This new concept in lodging and recreational facilities should revolutionize tourist activities in lake resort areas as well as in large metropolitan centers located on lakes and national waterways," Cherry said.

The facility will be fireproof and unsinkable, Cherry stated. "Each flotation unit is departmentalized into ten separate waterproof compartments, with a urthane compound superimposed on the inside and outside of external bulkheads. A specially designed waste disposal system has been incorporated to avoid water pollution," he added.

Lee and Canton, St. Louis, is the architect for the project. Kram and Associates, St. Louis, is the structural engineer and Bruns Engineering, Inc., St. Louis, is the electrical engineer.

Construction is planned to start this fall with completion set for early spring of 1971.

This is the second major construction project announced this month for the Lake of the Ozarks area.

The other one is a $30 million project to be built on Route M about 17 miles southeast of Warsaw which will feature a 1,600-unit condominium apartment complex, three swimming pools, two clubhouses and other facilities. It is scheduled to be finished in about five years.

Elderly Professor Climbs Two Peaks

MANITOU SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Prof. Edwin Paget of Raleigh, N.C., has made a hobby in the last dozen years of hiking up and down Pikes Peak.

Now he claims the distinction of hiking up and down Longs and Pikes peaks on the same day. The peaks, both more than 14,000 feet high, are 130 miles apart.

Paget, a member of the faculty at North Carolina State University, won't give his exact age beyond saying he is more than 65.

He said he began climbing Longs Peak at 4 a.m. Thursday and reached the summit 4 hours and 22 minutes later. Then he retraced his steps, drove to Manitou Springs and climbed Pikes Peak by way of the cog railroad.

Paget said it was the 406th time that he has climbed up and down Pikes Peak.

If you have leftover raw egg yolks (after using the whites), you can hard-cook them by simmering them in salted water for 10 minutes or so. The hard-cooked yolks may then be used in sandwich fillings or they may be sieved and used as a garnish.

To Visist 'Enemy Camp'

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — When President Nixon comes to Romania Aug. 2 he will be visiting a country that opposes American intervention in Southeast Asia and backs Hanoi's views toward Vietnam.

Even so, Bucharest's support of the Viet Cong and their Hanoi allies has been limited and accompanied by less propaganda than in other Communist countries of East Europe.

Full political support accompanied by independent action has been the hallmark.

Last month, the Bucharest government recognized the Viet Cong-backed provisional government of South Vietnam, but unlike Bulgaria, did not elevate the National Liberation Front's mission in Bucharest to an embassy. The mission, which was established last year, became a "representation". Its members were given diplomatic immunity.

An exchange of telegrams between Romanian and the provisional government leaders was published. This was one of the few direct mentions of Vietnam in the controlled press recently. Feature stories on the war and propaganda barrages frequently appear in the Soviet, East German and Bulgarian press but are rarely seen in Bucharest newspapers.

There also are no public campaigns for funds for North Vietnam and the Viet Cong, as in East Germany and other hard-line Communist countries.

Two high Romanian party officials, Emil Bodnarus and Paul Nicolescu-Mizel, visited North Vietnam and the Romanians came out in support of sovereignty, independence and self reliance of Communist countries.

At the time, Romania was reported resisting a Moscow-led effort for a massive common action by all Communist countries in support of Communists in Vietnam.

Hanoi evidently found sympathy for the Romanian position because, like Romania, it would like to avoid taking sides in the ideological dispute between the Soviet Union and China.

Concrete figures on Romanian aid to Vietnam have not been published. In 1967 Romania announced the signing of an agreement on free economic and military aid to North Vietnam for 1968. This was the first mention of Romanian military aid. Its nature was not specified.

In June 1968 Bucharest announced three agreements with Hanoi. These included additional nonreimbursable economic and military aid for 1968 and 1969 and a convention to postpone repayment of credits granted by Romania to North Vietnam.

No mention was made of volume or nature of the credit or of the development of trade between the two countries.

In 1966, the latest year for which figures are available, Romanian exports to Hanoi totaled $3.9 million lei. This Romanian currency is 18 to the dollar at the tourist rate of exchange.

For economic agreements, probably another conversion rate is used.

Although Romania's industrialization is moving ahead quickly, it is not in a position to give Vietnam such aid as the more industrialized Communist countries do. Czechoslovakia, for example, supplies Hanoi with machine tools, marine and diesel engines, trucks, tractors and pharmaceutical goods, partly free of charge.

Romania makes some of these products but needs them for itself.

Romanian officials say President Nicolae Ceausescu will press Nixon for a quick, negotiated end to the war. Nixon wants that too, but, so far, the way to attain it has not become clear.

Dow Jones Averages Suffer Sharp Loss

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market entered a long weekend with a loss Friday, with the Dow Jones industrial average off 7.17 at 845.92 for the day.

A two-day upturn in which the blue chip barometer had gained almost 12 points reversed under mild selling pressure. Volume for the day was 8.6 million shares compared with 10.45 million the previous day. Losses led gains by a 2-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

The dip was credited by analysts to caution before the approaching three-day layoff—the exchanges are closed Monday for the moon landing—and a carryover of worries about fiscal and monetary restraints.

Citizens to Vote On Garbage Dumps

BEND, Ore. (AP) — After voters turned down a proposed $70,000 levy for operation of "solid waste disposal sites," officials decided a more down-to-earth wording might be more effective.

When the measure goes to the voters again Aug. 21, the sites will be called "garbage dumps."

Thurber Depended on Pessimism

By MILVILLE SHAVELSON Distributed by The Associated Press

I first met James Thurber in London in 1957, at the Stafford Hotel, the kind of small, sagging British hostelry that might have been created from a Thurber drawing that had started out to be the houses of Parliament and got tired on the way.

He had wanted to meet whoever it was who was foolish enough to think that his own special world of insight and insanity could be converted to the selling of mouthwash.

The truth of the matter is that Thurber, who always took the pessimistic view because it was least likely to prove false, had little hope that it could be accomplished successfully. His interest, frankly, was financial; our greatest humorist since Mark Twain had never been able to turn his particular genius into any considerable quantity of hard cash. His work had always resisted attempts to transfer it to other media. As he left the preview of the motion picture Samuel Goldwyn had made of his "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," he was heard to remark: "By the way — did anyone happen to catch the name of that flick?"

At any rate, we had lunch together, and a wonderfully witty, cheerful, and congenial companion he was. It was only when he placed both hands directly on his steak so he could locate it on his plate that I could bring myself to realize that he was almost totally blind. Only recently, when we were attempting to find an artist who could reproduce his cartoon style, did we discover that all his later drawings are made up of a series of short strokes, instead of continuous lines. This was because at the latter part of his life, when he was confined to bed, he saw so badly he could only draw with a pencil fastened to the end of a long stick, and the drawings had to be made three or four feet high on a large sheet of paper tacked to the wall.

But he drew, wonderfully funny cartoons that still bring warm and understanding laughter.

His advice to me that lunchtime, which he repeated later when he had seen the first pilot we made — "seen" is not quite correct, he heard it, and his wife, Helen, described the action to him — was quite simple. "I'm afraid," he said, "that you are trying to be too faithful to Jim Thurber. Forget it and let's all make some dough."

We don't intend to neglect Thurber. We are going to use all we can of that treasure house of humor that is stamped with his unmistakable viewpoint; of the cartoons that have driven many fine artists berserk trying to justify their appeal. One of them once complained to Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker, that he couldn't understand why his own drawings were rejected while the magazine continued to print those of "that fifth-rate artist, Thurber." And Ross immediately drew himself up in defense of his friend and said, proudly, "Third rate."

But in addition, we and that is, Sheldon Leonard, Danny Arnold, myself, and those intrepid souls who are actually writing the scripts — are trying to follow Thurber's advice and make this a show for the television medium, one that will be amusing and funny and understandable to many who have never — God help them — heard of Thurber or seen his cartoons of people and animals who are often indistinguishable from each other.

The original Thurber pilot was made by Screen Gems in 1958 and starred Arthur O'Connell. It was called "The Secret Life of James Thurber," and since it was never sold, it remained much more secret than we had intended. However, the unkindest word said about it was that it was "ahead of its time." It was aired as a one-shot on the Alcoa-Goodyear Show of that era, and many people wrote in to mention how much they enjoyed it, and that it was ahead of its time. The fact that it was considerably behind Thurber's time — the main piece on which my pilot script was based had been written by Jim Thurber some 20 years earlier — didn't seem to bother anyone. Television, in the minds of many, lives several decades back of wherever civilization happens to be at the moment. Some invisible wall is thought to insulate morals, and the values of today, which exist all around it in many of the motion pictures on the very same channels. These motion pictures, of course, are ahead of their time.

Fortunately, it turned out that what these gentlemen meant is that it would have to go on at 7:30 instead of 9 o'clock.

A lucky thing, too, for after more than 10 years of trying to bring television and Thurber together, I was beginning to feel like the lemming in his memorable short piece, "Conversations With a Lemming." It seems — as Thurber told it — a scientist discovered that lemmings, those tiny mouse-like creatures who are prone to throw themselves into the ocean, could actually talk. The scientist and a lemming had a fine conversation, at the conclusion of which the scientist said, "You seem like a decent, intelligent sort of chap. But there's one thing I can't understand about you lemmings — why, at certain times of the year, do you throw yourselves into the ocean by the thousands?" And the lemming said, "The thing I can't understand about you humans is why you don't."

No one at NBC, I hope, is ever going to have to behave lemming-like over. "My World — And Welcome To It." My GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — While their countries fought a war, Karl Fick of Honduras and Jaime Salazar of El Salvador shared a room at the University of Florida and got along fine.

"We're good friends," Salazar, 26, said. "We have nothing to complain about. I think it is senseless and there has to be another solution, not only war."

Fick, 24, said, "We don't really know what's happening. We'd have to be there to know the facts and which country is right."

Both are graduate students in the university's college of agriculture and met while attending college in Honduras.

Woman Gets Uplift After Finding Money

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP) — A housewife has recovered a roll of $230 in bills after it traveled 13 days in a sewer.

Mrs. Rose Mary Sotelo told city officials she was cleaning her toilet July 3, and when she reached to flush it, the money dropped from her bra and was flushed down the drain.

Officials said she had one chance in five million of recovering the money. Wednesday, Harvey Swearingen, a sewage employee, happened to turn off the sewage chopper at the disposal plant three miles from Mrs. Sotelo's home.

He found the neatly rolled $5 and $10 bills, with rubber band still intact.

Liberty Park to Host State B.R. Tourney

By VAUGHN HART Sports Editor

Everything is being made ready for the Missouri State 13-15 Babe Ruth Tournament scheduled to get underway Thursday at Liberty Park Stadium. The tourney runs through Sunday.

Fifteen players, two alternates and three coaches are on the Sedalia roster.

From the 100 boys that participated in the Sedalia 13-15 Babe Ruth program, 35 boys were nominated. On July 12-13, Manager Harold Gunn and his two coaches, Larry Farrens and Jim Doerr, held tryouts for these 35 players. Following those tryouts, 15 were selected to represent Sedalia in the state tourney.

The players are: Mike Arnold, Rick Boggs, Bill Coffelt, Derrick Crank, Ron Harris, Steve Herzberg, Warren Jackson, Randy Kidwell, Dick Kinshella, Doug Maple, Greg Moyer, John McCutchen, Willie Reed, and Mike Walters.

The two alternates are John Cook and Mark Green.

Randy Adams was originally selected for the All-Stars, but he turned an ankle in league play on July 16, and will not be able to participate. This accident happened before the final list of All-Stars was submitted.

Seven out of the 15 batted 400 or more during the regular season, which ended Friday night.

Ten of the 15 have scored home runs during the regular season.

Manager Gunn replied when asked how he felt the Sedalians would do in the tournament. "We expect to win! With the boys that we have on this year's team, we're well filled out at all positions. The only trouble I'm going to have is picking nine of them to start on Thursday night."

Gunn summed it up by saying, "We've got some pretty doggone good ball players."

The Sedalia All-Stars are sponsored by the 13-15 Babe Ruth League, not a private organization.

Last year's tournament was held in Joplin, but due to the fact that Sedalia won the state championship last year, it is being held here.

The Sedalia All-Stars also copped state championships in 1965 and 1966.

Following the 1965 state win, the locals went on to take the Mid-West Plains Regional Championship and won the honor of playing in the Babe Ruth World Series in Anderson, Inc. Their record in that appearance was two wins and two losses.

District tournaments are being held now in four locations throughout the state.

District one is in the Joplin area; district two in the Sedalia area (this tournament is being held in Clinton); district three in the Lebanon area; and district four is in the Cape Girardeau area.

The winners of each of the district tournaments plus Sedalia will battle for the state 13-15 crown starting at 6:30 p.m. at Liberty Park.

The victor of the state clash here will step up to the regional tourney to be held Aug. 6-10 at Fairfield, Iowa.

The names of the winners of the Missouri district Babe Ruth tournaments will not be available until Monday or Tuesday.

The Aetna Life Insurance Co. furnishes all trophies for all the tournaments in Babe Ruth baseball throughout the United States.

There is no purse (prize money) in the Sedalia tourney, but the Sedalia 13-15 Babe Ruth League will be required to pay the winners expenses for the trip to Sedalia.

Visting players will be housed in local homes; league officials point out that some housing is still needed. Any interested persons should contact Leland D. Garrison, league commissioner, at 826-2246 so arrangements can be made.

A pre-tournament meeting will be held at Holiday Inn, Thursday at 2 p.m. of visiting managers, coaches and state and local officials for a review of tournament rules, inspection of player's birth certificates and the finalization of Sunday's starting times.

The double elimination tournament's final game or games will be played next Sunday.

Opening ceremonies will be held Thursday at 6:30 p.m.; the opening game will be played following this ceremony.

The Sedalia VFW Post will hold a flag raising ceremony, the invocation will be given by one of the local ministers and Miss Sedalia, Dixie Kemp will throw out the first ball.

Opening night action will pit the district three winner against the district four champ; the late game, at approximately 8:30 p.m., will feature Sedalia against the district two title holder. Due to the fact that district one drew a bye, that team will move into the second round automatically.

The tournament will have two games per night on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and one or two games Sunday, depending on whether the team coming up through the losers bracket defeats the team coming through the winners bracket. If this is the case, the second game between the two teams will be needed to determine the winner of the State 13-15 Babe Ruth Championship.

League Commissioner Lee Garrison, who has been in Babe Ruth Baseball in Sedalia for 17 years, expressed great pleasure and high hopes for the Sedalia All-Stars in the tourney.

Game time for the Thursday, Friday and Saturday night contests will be 6:30 and 8:30 p.m.; the Sunday game or games will be decided upon Thursday at the meeting at Holiday Inn.

Houstonia Loses

KNOB NOSTER — The Knob Noster Green Hornets of the Tri-County Knory Girls' Softball League in the sophomore division defeated the Houstonia sophomores, 11-3, Thursday night in Knob Noster.

Opening Feature

Sprint cars in action, such as pictured above, will be an opening feature of the seven-event auto racing programs, starting at the Missouri State Fair, Saturday, Aug. 16. Afternoon races will start at 2:30 and night races at 8 o'clock.

Championship Sprint Car Races are Fair Feature

Grand championship sprint car auto races, sanctioned by the International Motor Contest Association, will be the feature at the Missouri State Fair, Saturday afternoon, August 16, in the new ultra modern grandstand. The second series of speedway-type races will be held Sunday afternoon, Aug. 24, when the 15th annual Missouri Futurity is held on the one-mile track.

Time trials will be held at 1 p.m. on the opening Saturday and the first of six races at 2:30.

The Sedalia races will kick off a nation-wide circuit of major fairs under sanction of the International Motor Contest Association, America's oldest sanctioning body of speed, spanning 17 states from Florida to Minnesota.

During the seven speed events, owners and drivers will be vying for a total of $30,650 in purses, plus additional accessory awards from leading automotive manufacturers.

The slate of IMCA events will consist of sprint cars on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 16, and Sunday afternoon, Aug. 24; IMCA late model stocks and American sports cars will be seen in action three times. The first time will be Sunday afternoon, Aug. 17, on the half-mile track with starting time at 2:30.

The 100-mile non-stop stock car race is set for the one-mile track Saturday afternoon, Aug. 23, with time trials at 1 p.m. A series of stock car sprint races will be held the same night on the half-mile track, starting at 8 p.m.

The 16th annual Missouri Modified championships will be held the opening Saturday night, Aug. 16, and the 50-lap finale, Friday night Aug. 22. Seven thousand dollars in purses will be offered. Both events will get the green flag at 8 p.m.

K.O. Cox Challenges Pat O'Connor Tuesday

K. O. Cox will step up to challenge Pat O'Connor for the Central States wrestling crown on Tuesday's ring program at Convention Hall.

The powerful 260-pounder, calling himself the logical contender because of the fact he's beaten most of the other area heavyweights asked for the showdown in an effort to demonstrate his superiority over the former world champion.

Cox may have his hands full. O'Connor, who enjoys world ranking as a wrestler, is in the midst of a campaign to regain the crown he held from 1959 to 1961 and is having one of his best wrestling seasons.

Referee Dick Moody will team up with Danny Little Bear in Tuesday's semifinal in an effort to prove that the Viking is not invincible. The Viking has agreed to pin both opponents a full apiece or forfeit his purse.

Moody ordinarily is cast in the referee's role, but has experience as a grappler and several times has challenged various heavyweights in the area. He has on other occasions had to defend himself while pursuing his duties as referee.

The Sundown Kid, a Negro heavyweight highly touted in the Southwest, will make his first Sedalia appearance Tuesday when he goes opposite Ronnie Etchison. The newcomer is reputed to be strong, fast and agile. He'll get a solid testing from the veteran Missouri wrestler.

Opening the card will be a match between Thor Hagen and Chuck Adcox.

Third National, Parkhurst Win Top Honors

Third National Bank and Parkhurst Manufacturing tied for team honors this week in Sedalia Rod and Gun's weekly points meet.

High individual honors with 24 of 25, were Dickie Sole of Green Ridge and Richard Parkhurst of Sedalia.

John Rose, Bob Tucker, Dave Williams, Richard Arnett, Vernon Arnett, Paul White and D. Crammer all bagged 23 of 25.

State Fair Restaurant is still in first place for the season, followed by Trojan Seed in second; Vic's Package Store and Third National Bank are tied for third.

Standard Fertilizer holds the fourth spot and Osage Thrift Shop is in fifth.

Two teams are tied for sixth: Farmers and Merchant's Bank and Cash Hardware.

Seventh place belongs to E. C. Bishop and Sons.

Another tie for eighth spot finds Central Missouri Realty and S and M deadlocked for that position.

LeRoy's, Cargill, Parkhurst Manufacturing and Ray Skelly Service round out the ninth through 12th slots.

Sedalia BJers On the Road At Columbia

By virtue of their 10-9 Thursday night victory over Marshall, the Sedalia Ban Johnson Lions now have an even season's mark of 4-4.

Tonight the Lions travel to Columbia to try to better their current fourth place standing.

Columbia is in third place with a record of 5-2.

In other games today, Tipton (1-6) plays at Boonville (7-2) and Centralia (5-7) tangles with Marshall (0-9) in Marshall in an afternoon contest.

FINAL 18 TOUGHEST

HOUSTON (AP) — Deane Beman, Miller Barber and Ray Floyd were the only golfers to break par of 70 in two rounds of the 72-hole U.S. Open.

However, Beman went five over par in his last two rounds. Barber, shooting a 78 the final day when a 74 would have made him champion, went nine over par on his second and final rounds. Floyd, starting with a 78, put in a pair of 68s then faltered to a 72 the last round.

Orville Moody took the Open with a 281 but the final 18 holes proved toughest for the field as only two golfers broke par of 70. They were Bruce Devlin and Joe Campbell, both with 69.

Joe Namath Melodrama Now Completely Settled

NEW YORK (AP) — The Joe Namath melodrama is over. Bachelors III will be sold and Broadway Joe will be back playing football for the New York Jets. It is safe to turn your attention to the moon.

After six weeks of what Commissioner Pete Rozelle called "considerable unpleasantness," the end came Friday afternoon in the 13th floor Park Ave. office of pro football.

"We were reviewing the situation for the last time," said Rozelle, "when Joe put out his hand and shook hands with me."

Many cynics will claim Namath's retirement was all part of a gigantic publicity plan, but they will be people who do not realize the real depth of the problem.

When Rozelle insisted that Namath sell out his share of the swinging East Side club because of alleged "undesirable" customers, he was facing up to a precept he learned from his predecessor the late Bert Bell.

Joe Willie, the man who led the Jets to the Super Bowl title and shook up the pro football establishment, plans to be in the Jets' camp by Sunday and start working for the opening game with the College All-Stars Aug. 1 at Chicago.

Britain's Tennis Crew Wins

BRISTOL, England (AP) — Britain's tennis team knocked South Africa out of the Davis Cup Saturday while demonstrators bombarded the courts with flour bags and shouted slogans against South Africa's racial policies.

Graham Stilwell defeated Bob Maud 8-6, 11-9, 6-3 to give Britain an insurmountable 3-1 lead in the final of the European Zone, Section A.

It was a stormy match, twice interrupted by the political demonstrator.

During the first set two young men ran on to the court and sat down on either side of the net. They were carried away by police.

In the second set six bags of flour sailed over the heads of the crowd from an adjoining road. Five burst on the center court and the players went to the dressing rooms for 15 minutes while the ground crew cleared up the mess with brooms and a vacuum cleaner.

While the cleaning up operations went on, demonstrators paraded in the road outside and held up red flags on long poles.

The defeat ended South Africa's stormy road in this year's Davis Cup play.

The South Africans played only one match on the way to the section finals. Poland and Czechoslovakia refused to play the South Africans for political reasons and presented them with victories by default.

Demonstrators had picketed the Bristol Lawn Tennis Club during the three days of the final. Play on the first day was held up briefly by a sit down on court by two youths and two girls.

Windsor to Host Bowling Workshop

WINDSOR — There will be a district bowlers workshop held at Windsor Aug. 7 at 7 p.m.

Miss Sue Hutchens, district field representative of the Women's International Bowling Congress, will conduct the workshop.

All women bowlers in the Sedalia Women's Bowling Association are invited to attend.

If you plan to attend, Mrs. Edie Simon, the association secretary, should be contacted so reservations can be made. Mrs. Simon can be reached at 827-0464.

Three SFCC Cheerleaders Enjoy Rewarding Week

The week of July 6-11 turned out to be quite rewarding for Yvonne Otten, Rosemary Mumbower, and Brenda Jonson, three previous cheerleaders from State Fair Community College, who participated in a Pom-Pon Camp held at Marshall, Missouri.

The girls discovered that they were the only college girls attending and almost the only ones who hadn't been pom-pom girls before.

The first day, they had to make up a short routine which they had no idea about how to do. That night and for many nights following the girls stayed up until 1 or 1:30 a.m. making up routines and perfecting them for the next day's performance. Although the girls were depressed at first, they soon changed spirits at the end of the week when they were awarded an excellent ribbon, an outstanding ribbon, an honorary mention ribbon, and, best of all, the spirit stick.

Six instructors taught the girls a number of routines. They learned these from 8:30 a.m. to noon and from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. The girls usually learned two routines a day and reviewed them at a night meeting. The one routine that almost every girl in camp really enjoyed was a routine to the pop song, "Israelites."

An exhibition night, where the schools put their best foot forward in their best routine, was held, and also a talent night. Brenda Jonson did a skit, "Gone Fishin'," and sang "I Can't Say No!," a song she sang in the Miss Sedalia Pageant.

All in all, the camp was a combination of tired feet, spirit, sore muscles, a lot of work, and, of course, all the memories of friendships and smiles. It was rewarding for the college and the girls. The new pom-pom routines can be seen at upcoming SFCC basketball games this fall.

Pit Home Run Muscle Against Streak of NL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American league will pit the home run muscle of sluggers such as Frank Howard and Reggie Jackson against the National League's six-game winning streak Tuesday night in the annual All-Star baseball game at Kennedy Stadium.

A sellout crowd of over 45,000, possibly including President Nixon, will be on hand to help baseball celebrate its centennial year with a special gala including all-time all-star teams, the greatest player of all time and Hall of Fame members.

The game starts at 8:15 p.m.

Says Joe Had Doubts About Playing at All

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Babe Parilli, who was the New York Jets' No. 1 quarterback for five days, revealed Saturday that as late as last Wednesday night when he met secretly with his teammate, unpredictable Joe Namath had doubts about playing this season.

"I thought all along he'd be back," said Parilli, who was No. 1 from last Monday until Friday when Namath announced his return. "I thought so until I talked to Joe the other night. He took me aside and said:

"Babe, I think you'd better be ready."

"When he said that I had my doubts whether he'd make it. I don't think he himself knew."

Now Parilli probably will be relegated to the back-up role for which he was originally acquired. Namath announced Friday he was selling his restaurant, clearing the way for his return to camp.

Namath, in Los Angeles for business, is expected in the Jets' camp late Sunday night and likely will work out for the first time Monday.

"I'm very happy to hear Joe's coming back," Lammons said. "He called me this afternoon to tell me the news. I'm going back to camp Sunday."

Another Namath sympathizer, defensive back Jim Hudson, who also had announced he would not play this season if Namath didn't, reportedly also will be in camp Sunday night.

First word of Namath's capitulation to Commissioner Pete Rozelle, allowing his return to the Jets, was relayed to the players by Coach Weeb Ewbank at dinner Friday night while they were downing breaded pork chops and string beans.

"I have an announcement to make," Ewbank said, standing in the middle of the dining room. "Joe will be back with us."

Applause rattled the silence and the word "beautiful" was repeated over and over.

Dr. Pepper To Play Sam's Of Marshall

The Sedalia Dr. Pepper softball team will play host to "Sam's" of Marshall Sunday night at Housel Park in a doubleheader beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Sam's is well known in the Sedalia area for fielding a ball club. Last year they were in the Industrial League which played at Centennial Park. This will be the first time this year that they have played before local fans.

Neither team has announced its starting lineup.

The two teams were slated earlier in the season to play at Marshall but rain forced a cancellation.

Coaches Clinic Date Set At CMSC by Mahanes

WARRENSBURG — Central Missouri State College in Warrensburg will host its Third Annual High School Football Coaches Clinic, August 1-2, according to Howard Mahanes, clinic director and CMSC head football coach.

The clinic has gained popularity throughout the eastern Kansas and western Missouri areas the past two years as Mahanes features speakers outstanding in football coaching and provides information and equipment that will aid the high school coaches during the coming season.

This year's two-day program will feature eight speakers relating facts that have made them successful.

Guest speakers include Ed Ellis, 25 year Wyandotte High coach and presently head coach at Wentworth Military Academy; Dewey Allgood, Head coach at the University of Missouri at Rolla speaking on the passing game; Gladden Dye, Jr. from Oak Park High School speaking about the off-season training program; Joe Mintner, Lillis High, who has a 107-49-7 record over 21 years. Also speaking are Cecil Naylor, Marshall High School, revealing his successful football program at Marshall; S. A. "Red" Robertson, past coach and present Dean of Men at Northeastern Oklahoma A. & M. College, Miami, Okla.; Ed Lacy, Tulsa Washington High in Tulsa, Okla. who will speak on organization and offensive planning; and Bob Johnson, McCluer High School in St. Louis who beat Oak Park in the championship contest last fall.

Coach Mahanes will also reveal facts about the Fighting Mules football program at CMSC. The program will include films of last season's games and several discussion sessions.

The Mules earned a 7-2-1 record last season and capped the year by playing Doane College of Crete, Neb. in the post-season Mineral Water Bowl game in Excelsior Springs.

Coach Mahanes said that he expects approximately 200 persons for the two-day clinic, but has facilities for more coaches if they are interested in attending. He also pointed out that coaches who have conflicts in schedules can attend either one of the days. Friday's schedule also includes a golf tournament for clinic participants.

Coaches interested in attending should contact Coach Mahanes at Central Missouri State College in Warrensburg.

Premature 'Holiday'

An object lesson in semantics?
In recognition of the moon voyage by America's astronauts President Nixon declared Monday "a national day of participation." Governors and mayors collaborated by calling it "a holiday."

Either way you take it, millions of Americans will not show up for work Monday, mostly those folks on government payrolls. Other millions of Americans will continue their professional and labor jobs and likely will "participate" with as much enthusiasm in the astronauts' functions as will those who take the day off for golf, yard work, extra sleep or more time at the bars.

No matter how well-intentioned President Nixon's proclamation may be, the idea of "participation" or "holiday", whichever term you prefer to use, might well have had more appropriate application and tribute to the moon pioneers if it had been designated after a successful landing, safe departure and return to earth.

Confidence in the current venture into outer space suggests having the right thought should be dominant. But if some malfunctions or other disappointments occur, a holiday celebration in process at the moment could culminate in a grievous catastrophe.

We are inclined to believe the astronauts in their arduous explorations and achievements during this current historic venture might feel better in their own minds if fellow citizens were sweating it out back here on earth in the same work-a-day sense that they are devoting to their own task of making man's first step into the infinite universe beyond.

Soon we will be hearing about disturbing campus activities again. The interlude from nonsense during summer vacation has been refreshing and many of the less volatile adults and college youngsters hope that normality will be more prevalent when the school year begins this fall.

We could do with more of the type of protest that occurred at Mexico State University. In case you missed this sidebar here's a repeat.

After hearing demands of students in colleges around the country, cowboys on the Las Cruces campus decided they were being discriminated against.

The group then petitioned the administration for professors to wear western clothes and teach classes in rodeo technique. The students also demanded the administration put in each classroom deer racks on which to hang their hats.

Nonsense? Certainly. But here was the dramatic conclusion of the petition: "If these demands are not met by 7:30 tomorrow morning, we will continue to attend classes and get an education as we first intended to do when we enrolled in the university."

So, University officials ignored the ultimatum and the students did exactly what they threatened.

New Enforcer of Highway Safety

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — While three American astronauts are trying to make space travel safer, an American politician is moving to make highway travel less safe. He has succeeded in naming David E. Wells, a lawyer who has represented one of the big southern violators of highway safety, as general counsel of the Federal Highway Administration in charge of enforcing highway safety.

The politician who is masterminding this appointment is Rep. William Cramer, chief spokesman for the highway lobby and diehard opponent of highway beautification. He's the same congressman who engineered a sitdown last year against the anti-pollution bill to clean up American rivers and waterways.

Wells will replace Howard Heffron, vigorous enforcer of highway safety but recently has committed five serious sins.

First, he filed charges against Safeway Trails for violating safety regulations more than 6,000 times in the last nine years. Safeway Trails bus drivers were charged with working up to 100 hours a week, considered highly dangerous.

Second, Heffron was tough in enforcing tire safety standards against General Tire, Mohawk and other violators.

Third, he required Ford to call back cars for violating auto safety regulations; also prodded General Motors to warn 200,000 Chevrolet truck owners about defective wheels.

Fourth, Heffron demanded that the public have access to government records on bus and truck accidents. This antagonized the powerful National Association of Motor Bus Owners and the American Trucking Association.

NINETY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The Clintonians are endeavoring to induce the Sedalia Foundry and Machine Works Co., to move to their town. . . . The colicky days have come, the saddest of the year; beware of unripe fruit, touch light the lager beer. Oh, dear! . . . A mournful sad looking horse was led up and down Main street today, utterly disgusted at the price offered for him, which was $14.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Sedalia Public Library has received as a gift, a set of china which was the property of the late Mrs. A. D. Jaynes when the Jaynes family entertained President Rutherford B. Hayes and General William T. Sherman in their home on the southwest corner of Broadway and Ohio avenue where St. Mary's Hospital is now located. The dishes which were presented by Mrs. Jaynes' daughter, Mrs. Bransford Lewis, St. Louis, are now in the Sorosis room on the second floor of the library.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

T. H. Yount, chairman of the airport committee of city council, received approval from the CAA for erection of a hangar at the municipal airport. Estimated cost of the building is $3,000. It will be used as a hangar and repair shop. The city also received approval of the Central Missouri Electric Co., to extend their lines to the airport.

Thought for Today

And Elijah came near to all the people, and said, "How long will you go limping with two different opinions? If the Lord is God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him." And the people did not answer him a word. — I Kings 18:21.

It is not best that we should all think alike; it is difference of opinion that makes horse races. — Mark Twain.

Cultured Pearls

Cultured pearls are real pearls made by pearl oysters but they are brought about by introducing small foreign objects, such as sand grains, beneath the shell instead of waiting for nature to do so by accident.

Neglect Basics of Religion And Reap Fear, Confusion

By DAVID POLING

I remember one season when the New York Giants football team had lost three or four games in a row. Their coach, Allie Sherman, was puzzled and worried by the team failure. He had not been hurt by injuries. His manpower was first-rate and the weather had been perfect.

Instead of long explanations and loud excuses, he took home films of the losing games. Over and over he watched the replay of these encounters. The next day, at practice, he told his squad that nothing was really wrong, they just needed to get back to basics. Like remembering to block and block again, to tackle low, to keep track of your man and be ready for an all-out effort even when exhausted!

Certain basics have always been present in the Christian experience. When these are played down or ignored or scorned, the religious community mills around in confusion and fear. You may have your own basic list but words like love, justice, forgiveness and reconciliation must be near the top if we are talking about the Christian faith.

And if we are concerned about the leadership of Christians in a tough time, then we should ask if love and justice are immediate concerns. If society is ripping apart, then, of all people, Christians should be counted on to break down the barriers of hate, suspicion and class warfare. It is dishonest for anyone to ask for a world without tension and strain. How we conduct ourselves and the emotions and energy we display will surely say a lot about our faith and belief.

Sometimes we need to be reminded about basic Christianity from those who are not part of the flock. Horace Alexander has a new booklet on Gandhi (published by Pendle Hill, Wallingford, Pa.), part of the 100th celebration of the Indian leader's birth.

Of this saint, Alexander wrote:

"Gandhi spoke of truth and nonviolence as the twin principles that guided him through every crisis. Nonviolence was the best expression that he could find for that aspect of 'love' which is expressed in the Greek word agape—the mighty force of true, understanding affection; the love or charity of Paul's Epistle to the Corinthians."

Alexander reminds us that Gandhi had no use for shortcuts. "Once convinced that the right way to bring freedom to India was by nonviolent action alone, he would rather wait many years than resort to the alluring shortcut of violence."

Many voices now are raised against this strategy, this implementation of love in action. The track record of this country seems to be entirely locked up in a military mentality. It should not be so surprising that black militants have adopted a paramilitary stance in pursuit of their freedom formula. Arnold Toynbee saw our day clearly enough to say:

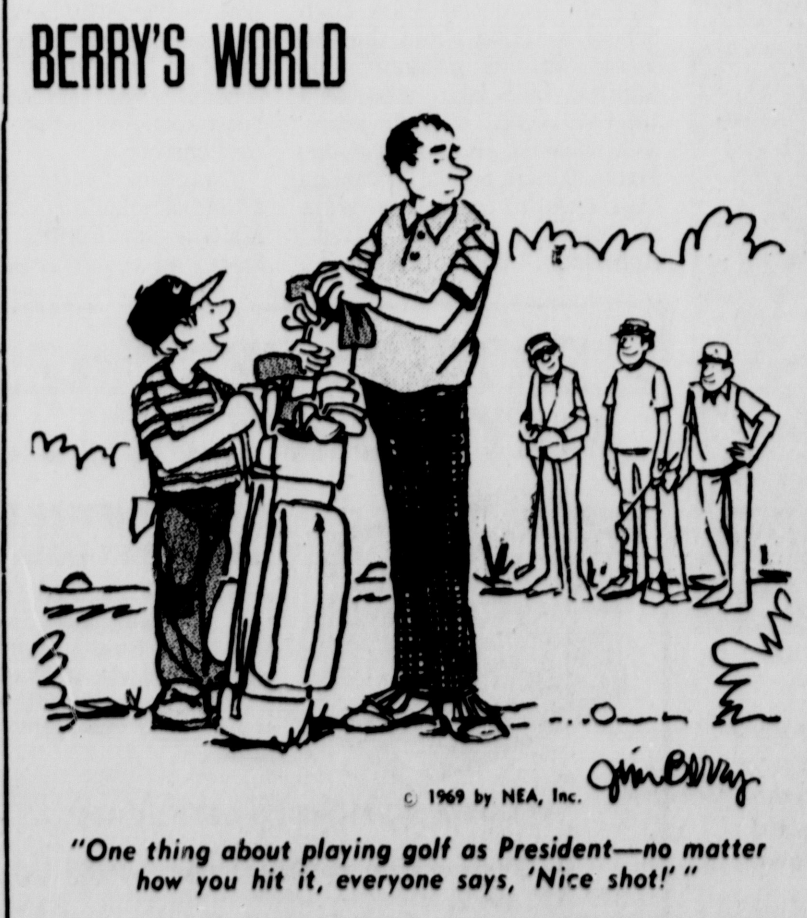

"You have to shoot somebody, burn yourself alive, do something violent, in order to get any attention at all, however good your cause or causes, however well you have put your case. There is an absolute stone wall of indifference all over the world."

If the Christian community has nothing else to contribute to the world scene, to the stone walls of separation and indifference, it should be that ability and tenacity to hang in there when everyone else wants to fight, to press for an exchange of ideas when no one wants to talk, to have the divine courage to talk about peace when the missile men are loading warheads.

Here at home it means nothing less than the rejection of Marxist terminology and violent tactics now so fascinating to some black radicals. It also means a 24-hour watch on those whites who are aching to crank up the hate machines and then wire us in to a police state.

For Christians, the basics are very, very timely.

Character

Persons' character shines through

In every little thing they do,
No matter what, someone will weigh
The words in what they have to say;
One may be quiet, gentle, mild,
He may be brusque, hot tempered, wild,
He may be natural, friendly, warm,
He may have sophisticated charm,
No matter what, he cannot hide
The kind of man he is inside,
And maybe he who laughs too loud,
Who shows off too much in a crowd,
Who doesn't act just like he should,
Whose reputation's not too good,
Does kindly things for someone frail
And helps at times when others fail;
A man too pious is quite sure
That his own life is very pure
And so that everyone may know
He's always there on the second row;
But the inner man has a funny way
Creeping out in things he may say
It's not exactly what he intends
Yet, he isn't the man that he pretends;
The friendly man can overdo
Sometimes his outgoing friendliness, too,
And now and then it's mighty clear,
That friendliness is just veneer;
The sophisticated man may be
As down to earth as you and me,
Circumstances when polish is thin
And he reveals the man within;
We never know as we look about,
Character till its turned inside out,
When a showdown comes that's when we find
What is in a man's heart and mind,
I have a feeling they don't know
When the inside man begins to show,
No matter the garments in which we're clad
Sometimes we look good and sometimes bad
For our real character shows through
In the little things we say and do.

D. C. Current

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Visitors to the Senate gallery are herded in to listen to the chaplain's prayer and watch a few senators wander in and out of the chamber for a few minutes, then are asked to make room for the next group.

The two greatest antagonists on the ABM question, Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) and Minority Leader Everett McKinley Dirksen (R-Ill.), were bombarded by reporters before the bell rang the other day. Their contrasting personalities caused about the same number of scribbles and grins from the boys who made it to the Senate floor.

Senator John Stennis (D-Miss.), Chairman of the powerful Armed Services Committee, sat noncommittal in his Senate seat as Senators Percy (R-Ill.) and Goldwater (R-Ariz.) stopped to greet him and whisper their views. The venerable Senator Aiken of Vermont stayed put waiting for the right moment to state his remarks on the ABM.

The Chaplain of the Senate, the Rev. Edward L. R. Elson D.D., offers his prayer immediately after the Senate is called to order. He likes to be called the Presidents' pastor because the late President Eisenhower (during his first term) joined the National Presbyterian Church, of which the Rev. Elson is minister. The Senate Chaplain receives $17,000 a year which entitles him to government retirement.

Senator Dirksen said he was sorry he said "that" — "that" meaning that Judy Agnew's husband needed an increase in the Vice President's salary because she paid $600 for her dresses. Judy didn't like that. Hidden in the Dirksen request was also a salary increase for Speaker John McCormack in the House and for the Majority and Minority Leaders in both houses.

Walking is the surest way of getting places here these days. The local shops have stoned selling tokens and you can't get on the bus without a token or the correct change. The taxis are on strike for more pay and meter charging instead of zone fare.

Former President and Mrs. Johnson expect their third grandchild around Christmas. Luci Nugent will contribute the gift.

The hippy movement has had it, according to Lady Robert Stephenson Smyth Baden-Powell, widow of the founder of the Boy Scouts, who is attending the National Boy Scout Jamboree in Idaho. With such a long name and 80 years of life, she should be speaking from experience.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR: That Trip to Venus. — As the Americans continue their breathing probes around the moon, let us take time to pay tribute to another major look into space. This is the Soviet Union's Venus project, which, Moscow tells us, worked flawlessly and sent back much valuable information.

This probe told us that Venus is a place in space whither man will never go. For, despite its marvelous brightness, that planet seems to be forever inshrouded "in a thick veil of clouds." Thus Soviet scientists have given up the idea of building a Venus satellite, feeling it would serve no useful purpose.

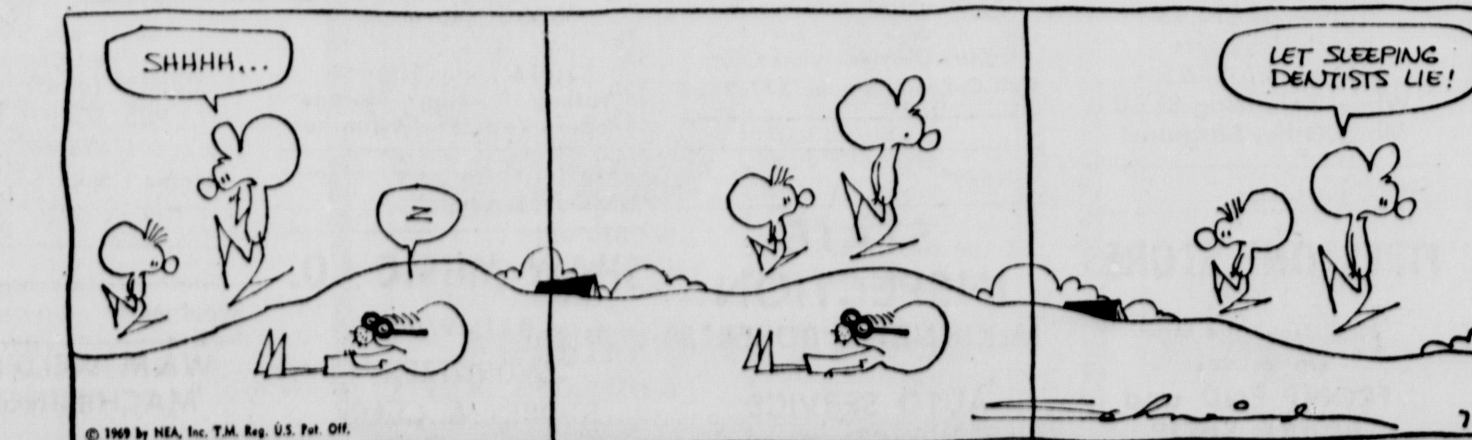

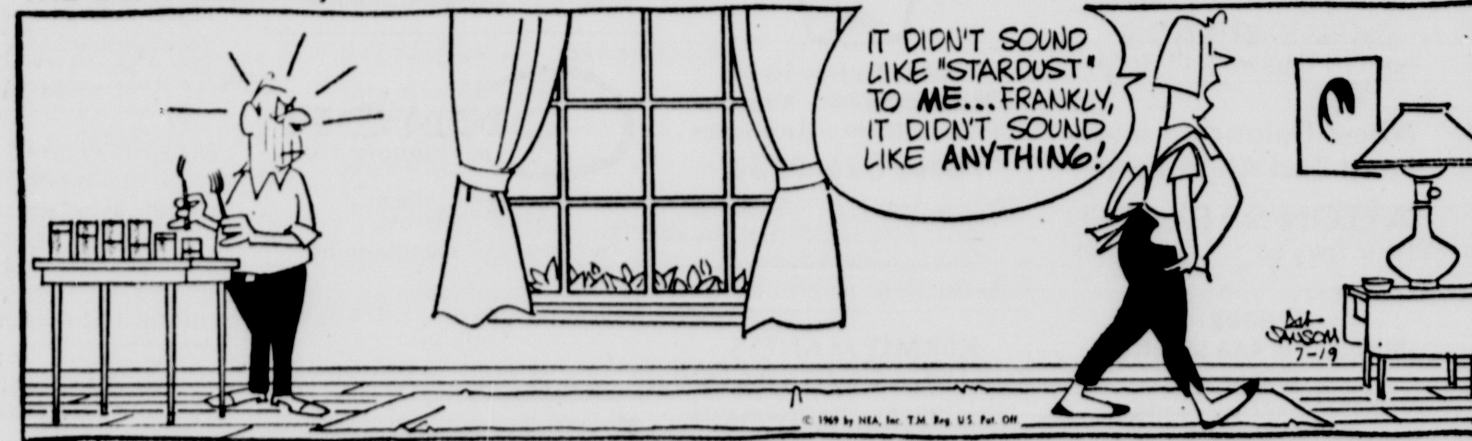

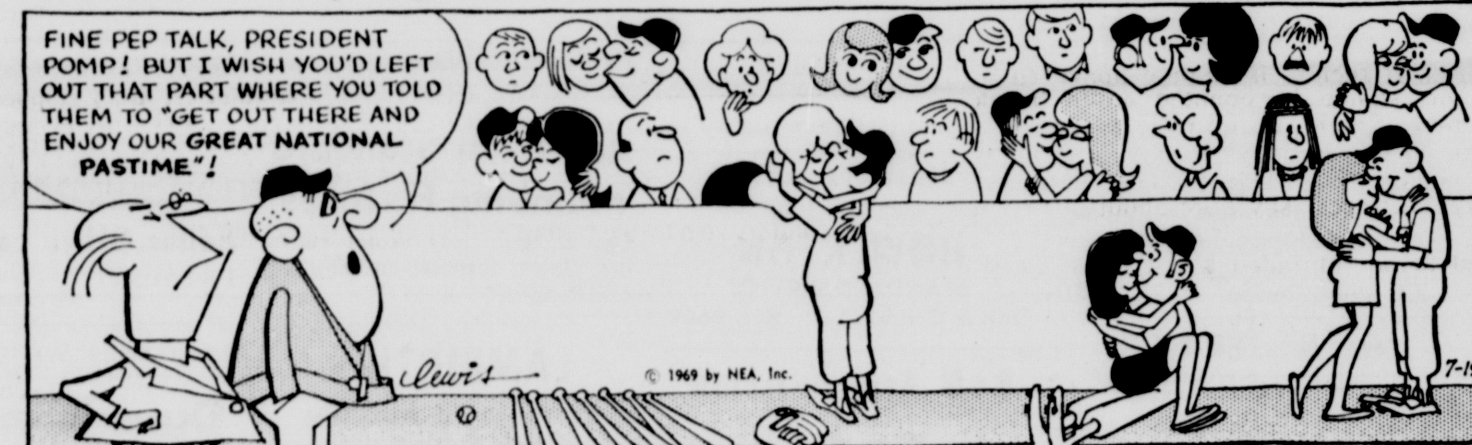

Although the American probe is the more exciting and almost certainly the more important, the Russians' peek at Venus fills in needed information in man's knowledge of his universe. And the gear which worked so well on that trip should do equally well on the more exciting probes to Mars.

And, meanwhile, we are happy with Venus as she is, shining resplendent in the morning sky as Lucifer and glowing brilliantly in the evening sky as Hesperus. Any heavenly body which could inspire such music as Wagner's piece on the Evening Star from Tannhauser, has done all that it need do for mankind's pleasure.

Not all Jews are Zionists. Zionism is the word for the movement which, in the late 19th century, was led by Theodore Herzl, who worked for the establishment of an independent Jewish state in Palestine.

The Vicarious Satisfaction Of Labeling a Girl 'Bad'

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: I was disgusted by your answer to the mother of that girl who married on the sly. I guess you never had a child who deceived you. Though I'm not a parent myself, my sister is and, as her daughter recently eloped, too. I know what suffering this treachery has caused her. Did this girl obey the scriptural command: "Honor thy father and thy mother"? No, she thought only of herself, of what she wanted . . .

ANSWER: You want me to call her a "very bad girl." don't you? O.K., I say it. She's a very bad girl. And now that we're all agreed that she merits damnation, where is her mother to go from there, eh?

Into the coldness of old age? The shawled huddle over the kitchen stove? Into senility's trembling hands and broken shoulder muscles?

You say you are not a parent yourself. But I am one and have been one for some time now. And I know much about the hurts children inflict on us. (Incidentally, you were mistaken to challenge me to the little game of scriptural quotation. I was raised on the Bible. So here's my devil's ball straight back across the net: "A man's foes shall be they of his own household.")

What do you want your sister to do—cut her throat? Kill herself because this kid has made a decision on her own instead of allowing her parents to make it for her?

Well, she's not going to do it. We parents do the best we can by our children. If our best isn't good enough for them, we are not going to kill ourselves. We are going right on living, thanks very much, despite anybody's down-pushing sympathy.

You think that this wounded sister of yours enjoys listening to you tell her that this child she loves is a very bad girl?

Apparently, you don't know who I am. I am a smasher of parent-smashers in all their many shapes. And to improve my smashing power, I have acquired much awareness of the devious ways by which the foes of our own households seize on our moments of agony to add to the agony.

This fellow-parent of mine is too hurt to hear what you're telling her when you bemoan her child's badness. But I hear you loud and clear. You are telling her: "Every effort, every struggle you ever made in behalf of this girl was bad. Had she been mine, I'd have done much better."

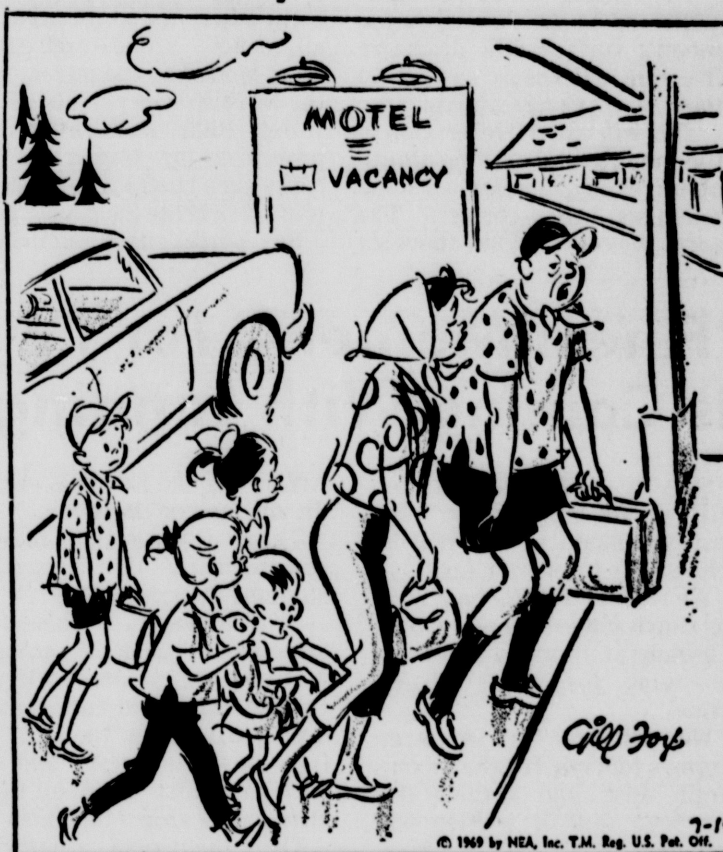

You love your sister. O.K. Then I challenge you. Show her this column.

Man's Pollution of Moon Is Price of Achievement

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Like a spreading virus, man in his time has corrupted and polluted the waters, the air and the land of the earth that gives him life.

And now, he is reaching out to contaminate the moon.

He will pollute its thin atmosphere. He will spread his own bacteria onto its surface. He will—as he has done already—litter the moon with things he no longer needs.

Such is the price the moon will pay for receiving two astronauts this weekend. It is unavoidable if man is to go there.

The braking rocket which will settle the lunar module on the moon's surface will discharge five tons of exhaust gases onto the moon, by one estimate.

This will equal five per cent of the moon's total existing atmosphere, if the guesses of some scientists are correct. The earth, by contrast, has about six quadrillion tons of atmosphere.

Bacteria and other organisms will leak out at the rate of 1,000 per minute from each of the two special spacesuits worn by Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. That totals more than 300,000 germs during their walking and working on the moon.

Nothing can prevent it. Even surgeons and nurses in supposedly sterile operating rooms exude more microbes than that from their bodies—not just their breath but from their skins as well—even after they have scrubbed up and donned special gowns.

An international space agreement stipulates sterilization for all rockets, probes and equipment landed on the moon, or on the earth's sister planets.

But total sterilization has proved to be impractical because such chemical treatments foul up delicate electronic gear.

So some past unmanned probes—both U.S. and Soviet—landing on the moon are assumed to have started out with some earthly germs. The LM on Apollo 11 has not been sterilized, says a spokesman for the manufacturer, Grumman Aircraft Corp. The landing craft will be exposed to the sterilizing effect of heat and ultraviolet light during its flight, it was pointed out.

The astronauts will leave on the moon their walking boots and gloves, a TV camera, the special tools with which they pick up moon rocks, a seismometer to see if the moon has moonquakes, a reflector to receive and retransmit laser beams sent from earth. None of these, so far as could be learned, has been sterilized.

On the positive side, the moon is bathed in fierce ultraviolet light from the sun. The light is a most efficient killer of bacteria if it strikes them. Also, the moon has no surface moisture and its thin air is nearly a vacuum. So most of the germs the astronauts carry up or release there personally should probably die soon.

But the fact that they unavoidably will release germs complicates the issue of determining whether there is any microbial life on the moon.

If the rocks they bring back are found to harbor germs, then the key question is—did the astronauts take them up there, or were they micro-organisms, especially peculiar ones, which have long existed on the moon?

To check this out, the astronauts have been examined rigorously to learn what kinds of micro-organisms existed in their bodies—and in the LM—before their departure from earth.

Rocket exhaust fumes from the descending LM introduce a complication. Hydrocarbons in the fumes might form organic compounds in rocks and soil picked up around the landing site. Organic, rather than inorganic, chemicals mean there is a basis for life of some kind.

Specialists estimate that an area within a radius of 100 feet from the landed LM might be thus contaminated. So, it would be preferable to gather more pristine rocks from a distance farther than that, if the astronauts find that in their bulky suits and adjustment to the moon's far weaker gravity, they can walk safely to spots where the fumes did not spread.

Charge Abuse By Members Of Zion Sect

AVA, Mo. (AP)—Two leaders of a communal religious organization were arrested Friday and accused of using an electric cattle prod on four children from 8 to 13 years old.

Marl Victor Kilgore, 64, president of the Order of Zion, and his son, Nathan Kilgore, 38, were arrested on an assault charge before Magistrate Gladys Stewart.

The father was released under $5,000 bond and the son under $2,500. No date for a hearing was set.

The elder Kilgore said 60 persons are living on the 1,700-acre farm the Order of Zion owns six miles north of Ava. At one time the population was 120.

Loyal Order of Moose regular meetings on second and fourth Tuesdays of each month at 8 p.m. All members are urged to attend.

INVESTMENT FOR BIDS
City of Sedalia, Missouri for New Industrial Building for Permanent Corporation

Invitation is made to submit stipulated sum proposals for the furnishing of all labor, materials, service and equipment to erect a single gabled multiple span rigid frame type building, a single track railroad siding, roadway and parking lots, and all utilities, all as described and shown in specifications and plans for the construction of a new manufacturing facility for Permanent Corporation at a site located west of North State Pacific Railroad Co. right-of-way, Pettis County, Missouri.

Sealed proposals in duplicate will be received by the City of Sedalia at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Sedalia, Missouri at or prior to 5 o'clock p.m. on Monday, July 28, 1969, and between 7:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. on the same date during the open meeting of the City Council on the second floor of the City Hall, Second and Osage Streets, Sedalia, Missouri. The sealed proposals shall be clearly marked on the outside thereof "Sealed Proposal for Permanent Corporation Facility," and "Not to be opened until 8 p.m. on July 28, 1969."

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check or bid bond payable to the City of Sedalia in an amount equal to five per cent (5%) of the bid.

No bid may be withdrawn after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids for a period of thirty (30) days.

Bids received after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids will be returned unopened to the bidders.

All bids properly submitted and received will be opened and publicly read at a special meeting of the City Council at 8 p.m. on Monday, July 28, 1969.

The City of Sedalia reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive informalities therein, and to determine which is the lowest and best bid and to approve the bond.

Specifications, plans and contract documents will be available for public inspection at the office of William H. Hall, Department of Industrial Development, 113 East 4th Street, Sedalia, Missouri. A copy of the same may be obtained upon deposit of $25.00 for each set of documents. Upon return of the documents in good condition within thirty (30) days after the date of opening bids, the full amount of the deposit for each set of documents will be returned to each actual bidder who submits a proposal.

All wages paid under the contract shall be governed by the prevailing wage law of the State of Missouri (Sections 290.210 to 290.310, R. S. Mo.).

The successful bidder will be required to furnish a satisfactory surety bond in an amount equal to the contract price for the performance and payment for all labor and material.

City of Sedalia, Missouri By Ralph H. Walker, Mayor Attest: Ralph Dedrick, City Clerk 10x-7-15 thru 7-27
